LEAGUE BRINGING PRESSURE

ABYSSINIA'S STAND KEY TO POSITION

FURTHER ARBITRATION MAY EASE TENSION

Geneva, July 26.

A somewhat more optimistic feeling prevailed here to-day with regard to next week's League of Nations Council meeting and it is expected that strong pressure will be brought to bear there upon Abyssinia with the object of inducing her to accept a continuation of the conciliation procedure and the appointment of a fifth arbitrator in the Italo-Abyssinian dispute.

If Abyssinia agrees, the Council will reaffirm the binding force of Article V of the Italo-Abyssinian treaty of 1928, whereby both countries agreed not to resort to arms and the Council meeting may terminate within forty-eight hours.

If Abyssinia insists upon a discussion of the whole situation, in all its aspects and details, including her proposals for the despatch of neutral observers to the scene of clashes, a very grave situation may develop. It is unlikely that hostilities could be prevented if Emperor Selassie takes this stand.—Reuter.

Addis Ababa, July 26.

Describing the battle formation of the Abyssinian Army, Emperor Selassie said to-day that "seven of the principal chiefs of the country each will command an Army Corps and each will act in liaison, although they will have a certain amount of independence for special missions."

"The inferiority of Abyssinian armament," the Emperor continued, "does not allow us to apply modern methods of warfare in each corps. But the regiments will be supported by numerous groups of mobile scouts who will warn the fighting men and will thus assure the mobility of the entire unit in action. What will handicap me above all, however, in any possible war, will be the lack of munitions," the Emperor admitted.

Nevertheless, he expressed the conviction that war conditions would remain extremely unfavourable for an Italian army of invasion and that it would encounter great and unexpected difficulties in Abyssinia's high mountains, which were her finest natural defence.

"In the mountains," he said, "the use of modern armaments on any great scale would be impossible and he doubted the reliability of the Italian army's recruited (Somali and British) when it came to fighting against the tribesmen of their own race.

The Abyssinian evolution, he declared, must flow onward.—Reuter Special.

DANUBIAN PACT NOW MATURING

MAY BE DEVELOPED WITHOUT GERMANY

PRESERVATION OF PEACE

Rome, July 26.

The Danubian Pact has been given new life as a result of the project submitted by France and Italy to Austria, Hungary and the Little Entente, who are understood to be favourably disposed to it.

The main points of the Franco-Italian plan are the affirmation of Austrian independence, the affirmation of non-interference with each other's internal affairs, including bans on propaganda, and a solemn promise that aggression will be avoided and that no aid will be given to any aggressor.

The proposal also provides for consultations in the event of any signatories breaking the laws of the pact.

A draft has been submitted to Germany, but it is not likely to be accepted by that country unless any bi-lateral agreement is expressly excluded. It is believed that at present there is no mention of bi-lateral agreements, and that the present form of the plan is therefore insufficiently attractive to tempt German approval.

It is stated here that there is a possibility of the nations proceeding with the signing of the pact even if Germany does not participate.

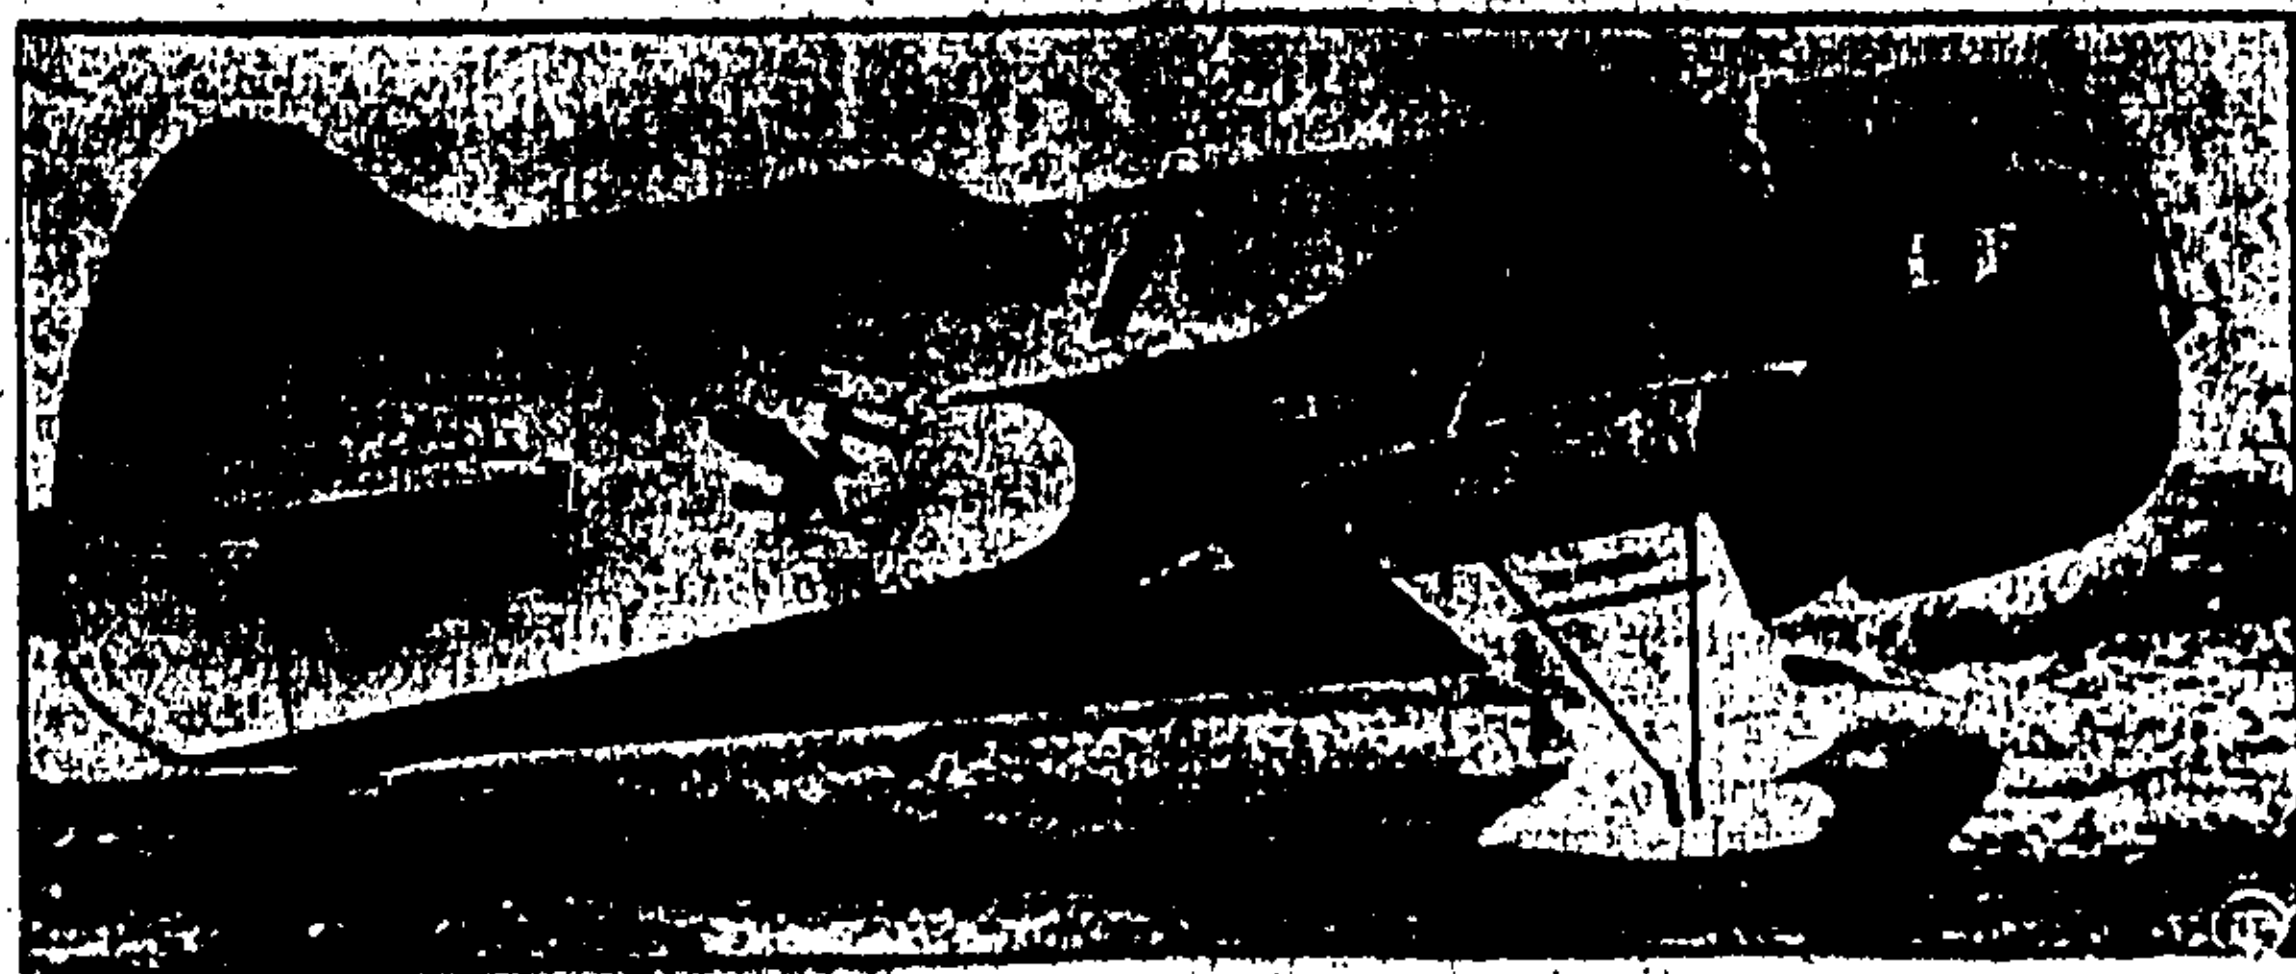

The project is also being submitted to Great Britain and Poland.—Reuter.

LOCAL DOLLAR DECLINES

MARKET RATHER UNCERTAIN

The Hongkong dollar declined a farthing this morning, the official rate being 2s. 1d. Business rates were 2s. 1s. 1/4d. and 2s. 1s. 1/4d. buyers. The market is rather uncertain.

In London, yesterday, silver was unchanged, spot and down 1/16th forward. India and China were small sellers, while America bought the market being steady. New York silver prices were unchanged yesterday.

Nothing less than two speed records—the world land-plane mark and the U. S. transcontinental mark—will be attempted by this "perfect streamline design plane." The craft, powered with a 100-h.p. engine, is the highest powered single motored plane in the world. Its wings measure only 25 feet from tip to tip.

Blow Aimed At American Profiteers

BORROWERS ENABLED TO BUY ABROAD

STEEL CORP. PROTEST

Washington, July 26.
It has just been revealed that the Public Works Administration Department issued an order on May 25 declaring that any borrower of $10,000 or more of Public Work Administration funds, must purchase its required products abroad if these were obtainable there at prices fifteen per cent. below the cost of similar domestic products.

The Bethlehem Steel Corporation has announced that it has strongly protested to Washington against the order. It would have the effect of allowing the possibly inferior products of cheap labour abroad to come into the American market and might very well mean the commencement of price wars in which the American industries could not compete without taking enormous losses.—Reuter.

Dr. Aalberse, President of the Roman Catholic State Party, spent the afternoon consulting Party leaders and other political personalities, including the President of the Lower Chamber, Jonkheer J.M. Ruys de Beerenbroek, also of the Catholic Party, in an effort to form a new Cabinet.

In Parliamentary circles it is strongly doubted, however, whether Dr. Aalberse will succeed in enlisting the support of the majority.—Reuter.

BETTER COLONY FINANCES

CREDIT BALANCE INCREASED

Financial returns just issued show that the Colony's credit balance at the end of April was $13,453,080, compared with $12,765,063 at the end of March. The revenue for April was $2,554,061, compared with $2,723,387 for the same month last year, whilst for the period from January to April inclusive the respective figures were $9,786,270 and $10,755,169.

Expenditure during April totalled $1,366,079, against $2,455,727 for the same month last year, whilst for the period from January to April the respective figures were $5,581,047 and $10,111,000.

AMERICA'S NEW PEACE POLICY

Will Avoid Issues Not Vital To U.S.

Washington, July 26.

A two-point American peace plan was enunciated by President Roosevelt at a press conference to-day. It consists of a continuation of the "good neighbour policy" and the avoidance of all issues which do not directly concern the United States.

Referring to the Italo-Ethiopian controversy he said the country was not concerned except in its general interest in world peace and in the personal feeling of Americans concerning events happening throughout the world.—Reuter.

Macmillan, M.P., Professor Gilbert Murray, Captain V. A. Cazalet, M.P., Sir Basil Blackett, Sir Oliver Lodge and Professor Alexander

In the economic sphere, the programme has the double objective of increasing productivity and lessening the gross inequalities of economic rewards, the scandal of unemployed resources, of labour and capital, and of the public under specified heads. A long-range plan of national development and conservation should be undertaken in accordance with the condition of trade. Social services should be provided for every citizen the minimum necessary for a full life. An Economic Act is advocated for the purpose of encouraging the American Government to consider the possibility of a similar scheme in the United States.—Continued on Page 11

Fostering British Aviation

INTERNAL GROWTH ENCOURAGED

"COUNCIL OF ACTION"

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By "Telegraph," Copyright, Telegraphic
News Service, London, 1935. Received, July 27, 8 a.m.)

London, July 26.

Great Britain is concentrating upon the development of her civil aviation organisation as well as upon the modernisation and expansion of the Royal Air Force.

A "Council of Action" has just been decided upon, comprising representatives of all Government Departments. Its members have been appointed to devote themselves to the study and encouragement of civil aviation.

This was the statement made to-day by Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, Secretary for Air, when addressing a monster crowd at the opening of Newcastle-on-Tyne's great new airport at Wallsington.

The "Council of Action's" terms of reference were to consider how the Government, in collaboration with the local authorities, could promote civil aviation, taking into account the requirements of the Post Office and other forms of transport. The internal expansion of civil aviation, it is hoped, will act as an impetus to its external development, and the extension of Great Britain's commercial airlines to all corners of the earth.—Reuter Special.

A British Wireless message states that in opening the new airport, Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister said it was a real business asset to have a first-class airport, and he hoped the port would increase the business of the Tyneside. There were in Great Britain some twenty-five great municipal airports already, and five more under construction.

RATE REFUND CONCESSION

ON PARTLY-VACANT TENEMENTS

His Excellency the Governor in Council ordered, under Section 2 of the Rating (Refunds) Ordinance, 1926, that refund of rates for the rating year 1st July, 1935, to 30th June, 1936, may be made where, although a tenement has not been wholly vacant, one or more floors thereof have been vacant during the whole of any calendar month in the said year, provided that:

(1) the owner elected during the period 1st to 31st of January, 1935, to obtain a refund on vacant floors for the tenement concerned and returned to the office of the Treasurer and Assessor within that period the form sent out for that purpose, having duly stated thereon his election.

SILVER SENATORS ANSWERED

ROOSEVELT STATES HIS POLICY

ACTING IN NATION'S BEST INTERESTS

Washington, July 26.

Replying to the petition signed by forty-six Silver Senators requesting President Roosevelt to speed up the silver purchase programme, the Administration's chief said to-day that he would execute the Silver Purchase Act "in the manner of most advantage to the public interest."

President Roosevelt declared that he was complying with the broad objectives of the Act—those intended to attain a wider use of the white metal.

Such particulars as the amount of the price from day to day, the quantity of purchases and the issuance of silver certificates in excess of the cost of silver, must be left, as provided by law, to the judgment of the Secretary of the Treasury, said the President.—Reuter.

(Special to "Telegraph")

Washington, July 26.
Replying to the Silver Bloc of the Senate, President Roosevelt to-day sent a letter to Senator Thomas of Oklahoma saying: "I am glad to have the benefit of your observations and suggestions on the silver question."

"As evidence of the broad objectives of the silver policy I would refer you to my message to the Silver Bloc in Congress on May 22, which was one of the numerous statements I made on the desirability of the wider use of silver as a monetary medium."

"I am glad to have my message supplemented by statements on my behalf, to the effect that if the Act was passed it should be carried out vigorously and in good faith."

"The Administration's acts will be characterised by this spirit and purpose."

TREASURY'S DUTY

"When it comes to particulars such as the amount and price of daily purchases and the issuance of silver certificates in excess of the cost of silver, their determination is the duty which Congress has laid upon the Secretary of the Treasury."

"I know from frequent conferences with him on the administration of this Act, which is charged with such great possibilities for our national welfare, that this duty has been and will be discharged in a manner most advantageous to the public interests."

"The Act itself enjoins, and is in pursuit of, the common objective of a wider monetary use for silver."—United Press.

THOMAS' OBSERVATIONS

Washington, July 26.
Senator Thomas to-day indicated that the Silver Bloc in the Senate does not expect any further major silver legislation during this session of Congress with the possible exception of the plan formulated by Senator McCarran. Senator Thomas, however, said that the major efforts in the Senate now would be devoted to insisting that the Administration should continue the congressional mandate in the Silver Act.

He said: "The President has sufficient power to attain the ends we are seeking, therefore one of our chief duties is to observe that he executes our aims."

"The fact that so many Senators have concurred in petitioning the President has indicated that the silver programme is receiving broad and very influential support."

Impartial observers here have expressed the opinion that any new steps for the promotion of silver will be delayed until such time as it could be passed quickly. Others, however, say that Congress, being anxious to adjourn, will be unwilling to consider irrelevances. (Continued on Page 11.)

U. S. BANK REFORMS APPROVED

WILL NOW GO TO CONFERENCE

HOUSE MORE DRASTIC

Washington, July 26.

The Senate, without the record of a vote, has passed the Banking Bill substantially as revised by the Senate Bank Committee.

The Bill will now go to conference with the House of Representatives, which has passed a much more drastic reform measure.

Prior to the passage of the Bill, the Senate, despite Administration opposition, voted by 39 to 22 to retain the provision permitting restricted underwriting of securities by commercial banks, and also voted down by 59 to 10 a substitute proposal to create a Government-owned Central Bank.—Reuter.

MAKE-UP HINTS

By MAX FACTOR

With the possible exception of the bearded lady at the circus, most women's faces suffer from insufficient protection. Day after day your beauty is at the mercy of hot sun, steam-heated rooms, swift winds and severe weather.

Causing grief—and wrinkles.

It's a good idea to help your face brave the elements by protecting it with daily Skin and Tissue Cream applications.

Work this into your face by manipulations and massage. Knead it in, rubbing vigorously. The skin isn't a sponge. It is a great measure waterproof. But you can force oil into it.

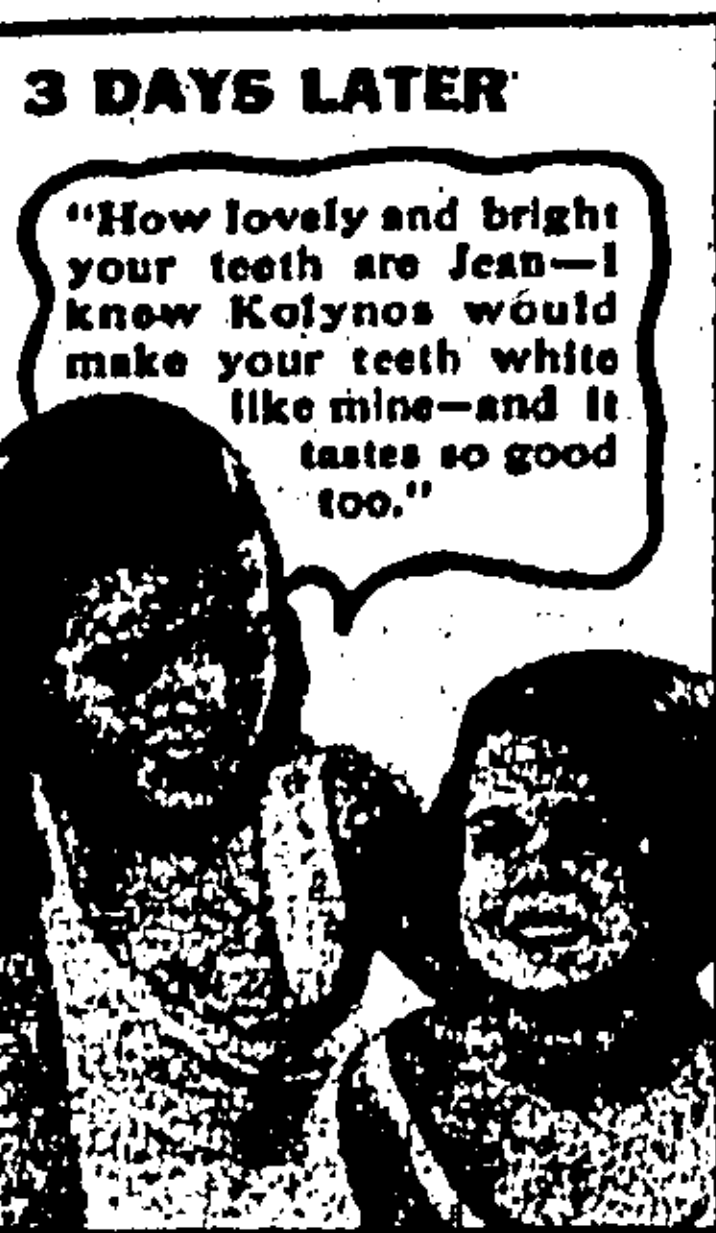

At night, leave this cream on your face while you sleep, and in the morning remove every trace of it with a soft towel—then follow with a delightful tingling facial bath of Skin Freshener.

FILMLAND NEWS

Hollywood Making Most of Dickens

WHAT LONDON SEES

London, July 2. Hollywood seems determined to make the most of the popularity of Dickens. "David Copperfield" and "Great Expectations" have already been transferred to the screen. "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" has just been completed, and "Martin Chuzzlewit" and "A Tale of Two Cities" are now in the process of transition. The task of providing an end for "Edwin Drood" has been exceedingly difficult, for Dickens left no clue to the mystery. Beside the "Edwin Drood" film the Capitol programme also includes "Under Pressure" in which Mr. Victor McLaglen and Mr. Edmund Lowe appear. Other new films in London this week are "The Bride of Frankenstein," with Mr. Boris Karloff as the monster; "The Glass Key," adapted from Mr. Dashiell Hammett's novel; and "No More Ladies," in which Mr. Robert Montgomery, Mr. Franchot Tone and Miss Joan Crawford share the principal parts.

Hollywood's solution of the mystery of Edwin Drood is simple—and, from the point of view of those who enjoy seeing a plain villain hunted down—satisfying. It treats the more extravagant theories of literary critics with polite scorn. The mysterious Datchery was not Edwin Drood himself in disguise (nor Growlous, nor Growlous's clerk, not Helena Landless), for Drood had in fact been murdered and the job of bringing Jasper to justice fell inevitably to Neville Landless, the hot-tempered youth, whom Dickens left under a cloud of suspicion. Drood was strangled and buried, with quick-lime, in an empty cathedral tomb, Jasper having profited by Durdles's habit of sending the tombs with a mallet, and Datchery, profiting by the same eccentricity, uncovered the tomb, unmasked the murderer, and drove him to the top of the steeple, whence Jasper plunged to destruction. Thus arranged it is a story of strong situations, which needs and receives only the slightest tincture of characterisation. Mr. Claud Rains plays the part with smooth impressiveness. Mr. Francis L. Sullivan's Grizpake is ambiguous and Mr. Clyde's Sapsea a faint recollection of the original, but Mr. Forrester Harvey established Durdles as a genuine eccentric. Miss Heather Angel is a really charming Rosa.

In the same programme there is a virile, back-slapping, jaw-punching film called "Under Pressure," making all possible capital out of the romantic lives of men who work in compressed air driving tunnels under rivers. Mr. Victor McLaglen and Mr. Edmund Lowe, as the toughest of the tough, do this sort of thing remarkably well, and their high-spirited ferocity carries all improbabilities before it.

"THE GLASS KEY"

George Raft and Tom Arnold are at the Plaza in "The Glass Key." This film is concerned with political graft and the methods which the underworld employ to rid themselves of reformers who are lacking in tact. Paul Madvig (Mr. Edward Arnold) is a political leader, and an honest one at that. His daughter falls in love with a worthless philanderer who is found dead soon after Madvig has been seen quarrelling with him, and at once his enemies seize on this opportunity to discredit him by building up a case of murder against him. But in Ed. Beaumont (Mr. George Raft) Madvig has a henchman who says little, but does much. It is a part well suited to Mr. Raft's imperturbable calm.

"NO MORE LADIES"

A comedy of manners is the natural place for Mr. Robert Montgomery, as is a comedy of wit for Mr. Franchot Tone, and a comedy of sophisticated sentiment for Miss Joan Crawford. In "No More Ladies" Miss Crawford is the most fortunate, for it is sophisticated sentiment which controls what little design the film possesses. Marcia is a woman who goes into marriage with her eyes open, understanding perfectly the philandering character of her husband. He runs true to form, and an apt acquaintance of his soon gives Marcia the chance of showing how much genuine feeling may be hidden behind the manners of those whose sole concern seems to be with the surface of things. The director understands the spirit in which the film should be played and cuts short each situation the moment it ceases to be merely entertaining and threatens to become pretentiously irksome.

FRANKENSTIEN FILM

A very horrible Trade Show was given at the Tivoli this week which will appeal to lovers of the uncanny. It is called "The Bride of Frankenstein" and features Karloff as the monster, so no more need be said. It is really a sequel to the film "Frankenstein" and assumes the monster escapes from the mill. Eventually he is captured and placed in gaol. Escaping, he flees to the mountains and becomes the companion of a blind hermit who teaches him to speak and to understand. Later, the Monster finds shelter in a cemetery where he meets Pretorius who is seeking material to be used in creation of the bride. The Monster is delighted to learn that he is to have a mate.

Realising the hideousness of their work, Dr. Frankenstein refuses to proceed. The Monster steals Elizabeth, Frankenstein's bride. Pretorius promises Elizabeth's restoration if Frankenstein will continue the work. Frankenstein agrees. The work proceeds and the moment approaches to bring the new creature to life. The Monster is present, waiting anxiously. A terrible storm rages. The Woman Comes To Life! She walks... The Monster holds out his arms... She shrieks and screams in terror... The Monster swings a lever in mad fury... The great laboratory explodes into a heap of building ruins.

NIGHT LIFE IN PARIS

REPUTATION TO BE RESTORED

ATTRACTING TOURISTS.

By JOSEPH D. RAVOTTO
United Press Staff Correspondent

Paris. The Ville Lumiere is out to out-Broadway, New York's famed White Way, at night by making the historic Champs Elysees the centre of a bigger and better night life.

Thus Parisians, who want to see the French capital regain its reputation as the city of lights, hope once and for all to end the tourists' plaint of late that "Paris is dead at night." It's a city without night life.

The beautiful Champs Elysees, so animated in the afternoon with its thousands of handsomely gowned promenaders and cafe terraces, formerly went into almost total obscurity once the sun had set behind the Arc de Triomphe. Only a few cinemas and cafes remained opened until shortly after midnight.

SATISFACTORY COMMENTS

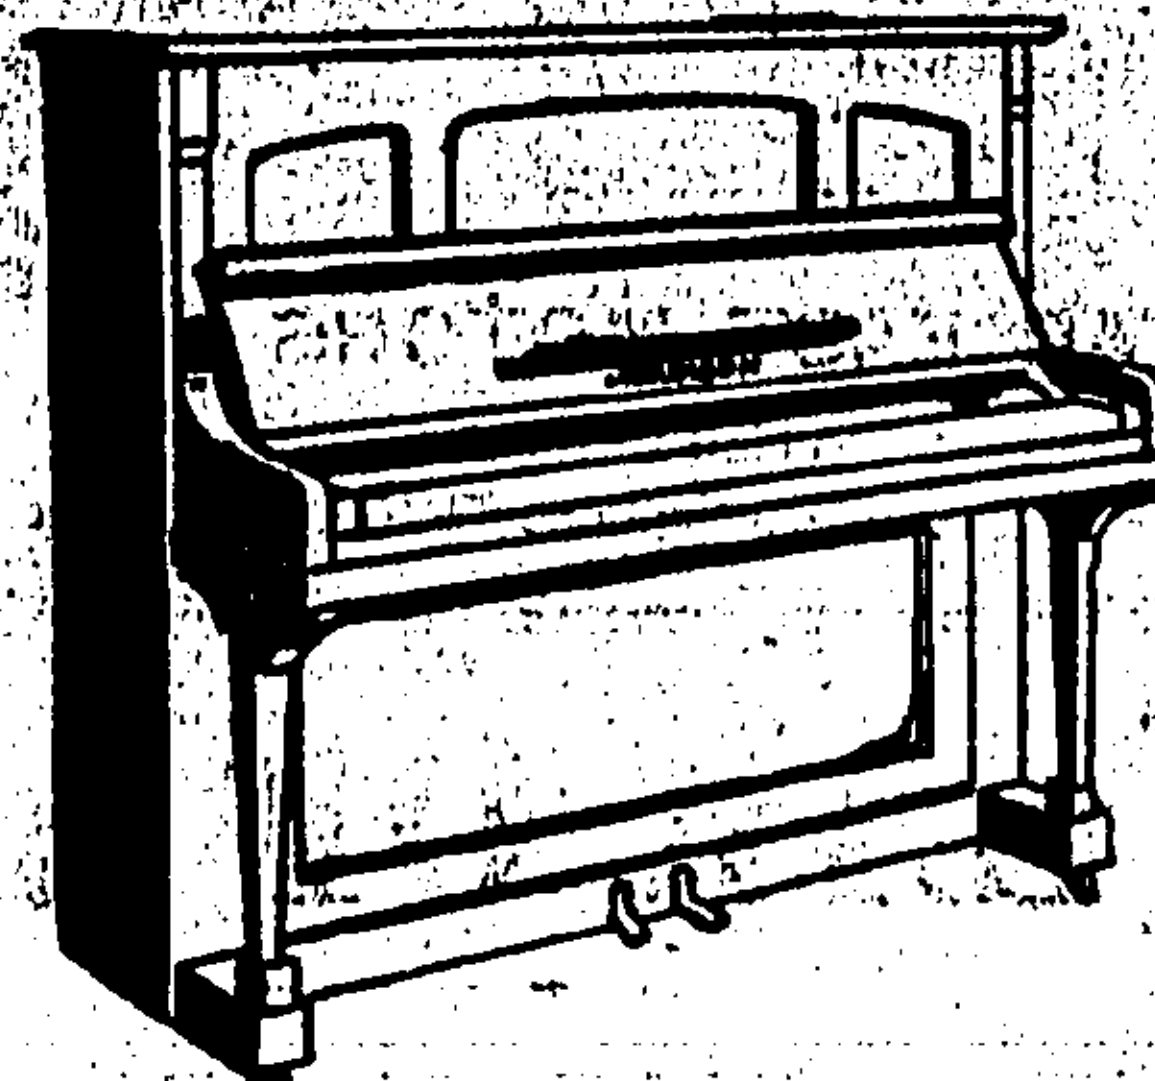

Already satisfactory comments are being heard. The innovator, Maurice Vuitton, President of the Amis des Champs-Elysees, reports: "I'm delighted with our experiment. In the past an average of 700 people hourly filed by a given point after nine o'clock in the night. Now on Friday nights the lights of the opened shops attract more than 2,400 persons hourly. That figure doesn't yet compare favourably with the 4,000 that pass by each hour during the afternoon but I'm sure that once the good weather is here to stay, our nightly figure will approach it without difficulty. Then we shall remain open every night."

Vuitton did admit that night sales for the moment were only negligible, not sufficient to pay for the help or even the light bill. He said that clients came into the shops to look around and gossip, still surprised at the new animation along the Avenue.

"Some of the shopkeepers, however, have proved to be more enterprising than others and report they are kept busy. They have used bait to attract customers. For example, one photographer has placed a sign rather prominently in his show-window, which reads: 'Avail yourself of the opportunity of photographing yourself in your tuxedo and evening gowns.' He reports a rush of night business. A shoe store displays a pair of shoes so highly polished that one's reflection can be seen. He invites folks in for a free shine. They come in and often, quite often, buy shoes. Another shopkeeper offers flowers to his nocturnal clients."

Rival shopkeepers on the Boulevards are not complaining. They rather like the idea and state they have no intention of competing. One Boulevard merchant said: "A gay Paris will attract tourists. More tourists will mean more customers for us for people ordinarily do their shopping in the day."

SPEED LIMIT PROTEST

WOMAN PREFERS PRISON TO FINE

"THIS IDIOTIC BUSINESS"

Miss Fay Taylour, the racing motorist, gave herself up at West London Police Court in answer to a warrant following her refusal to pay a fine of £1 imposed on her at Kingston for exceeding the 30 m.p.h. speed limit.

She was driven to Holloway Prison in a private car with a police officer to serve a sentence of seven days.

Miss Taylour, who was wearing a jumper and a beret, walked smilingly into the warrant office, accompanied by a man friend who carried a large suitcase. She explained that the bag contained her clothes.

"I want you to take me in," she said to the officer in charge. "I have only got sixpence on me, and I definitely won't pay the fine. I prefer to go to prison."

Miss Taylour was told that it was usual to wait a month before a committal order was issued. She was again asked if she would pay her fine, but she refused, and said, "Will you please take me quick and get me locked up."

To a reporter, Miss Taylour said: "It is really too bad. I could not think of paying this fine. I am going to prison as a protest against this idiotic business. I have driven cars ever since I was twelve and I have never had any trouble before. I was gonged while overtaking on Kingston Hill. I was driving perfectly safely. This speed limit is, I think, quite unfair."

"By the way," Miss Taylour added, "I have packed my beach pyjamas, but I doubt if they will let me wear them there."

Just before leaving for Holloway, Miss Taylour gave a message to a friend in connection with her plans for the Leinster Trophy race next month.

Miss Taylour has been described as the finest woman racing driver in England, and has won fame as a dirt track rider in England, Australia, and New Zealand.

AN UNUSUAL STORY

BANISHEE COMMITTED TO CRIMINAL SESSIONS

An unusual story of his arrest in Hongkong on board a steamer by two Chinese detectives who later took him across to Yau-mat where they handed him over to another detective, was told by Sin Ming alias Sin Man, 43, when he appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon charged with a breach of the Deportation Ordinance. After evidence had been heard he was committed to stand trial at the next Criminal Sessions.

Lau Kwai, Chinese detective C274, stated that about 8.30 p.m. on July 18 as the result of information received he went to the junction of Shanghai Street and Pakhoi Street where he arrested defendant and took him to the Yau-mat Police Station.

Asked whether he had any questions to ask, defendant alleged that he was not arrested in the street but had been arrested on board the steamer Tin Shun in Hongkong, and a report of his arrest had been published in the Kung Sheng daily newspaper. Witness denied this and stated that when he arrested defendant, defendant was walking with another man.

Defendant's Story
Defendant stated in evidence that he was banished to Kowloon on the 8th. He returned to Hongkong on the 14th, but returned to Kowloon the same night without going ashore. On the 18th, witness again came to Hongkong and saw the steamer Tin Shun lying at the Sai Kong wharf, so he hired a sampan and boarded the ship and remained there until 5 p.m.

About ten minutes after the steamers Lee Hong and Sui Tai had left for Macao, two Chinese detectives came aboard and arrested witness and struck him on the chest.
Witness was then taken to No. 168A Hollywood Road, first floor, and was given a bowl of rice.
The detectives told witness that they were stationed at Kowloon and they suggested taking witness across to Yau-mat. At 8.30 p.m. they took witness to Yau-mat where they bought a pair of shoes for him at his own request because his own had fallen into the water. Witness was then handed over to first witness.
Witness knew the names of the two detectives who arrested him on the steamer. One of them was called Yip Ming and he addressed the other as Lo Hol.
Witness admitted that of the 14
previous convictions against him, 10 were for breach of the Deportation Ordinance.

Further formal evidence was heard and defendant was committed for trial.

BRITISH SHIPPING OUTLOOK

The British Government's scrap-and-build shipping scheme has so far not been taken up to the extent that was hoped when it was initiated. Recently, the President of the Board of Trade announced that provisional approval had been given for the construction of seven tramp steamers and one cargo liner, totalling 89,450 tons gross, and involving loans amounting to over £670,000. Whilst seven tramp steamers and one cargo liner do not represent a volume of new work that is calculated to have much effect on the languishing shipbuilding industry, it is a beginning, and there are expectations that if some of the obstacles involved in the scheme can be removed, the rate of progress may be speeded up somewhat. There has recently been some criticism by owners and builders that a national industry like the shipping trade should be heavily hit by the Government's tariff policy, whilst an industry like that of sugar beet is granted a wholly disproportionate subsidy when compared with the measure of help offered to shipping. The Chairman of Cammell Laird and Co. voiced these complaints when he stated that the Government policy had been a disastrous one for the shipping business, since it meant loss of freights homeward and outward, which is all the more felt because conditions in international trade have been greatly worsened by the spate of tariff restrictions, quotas, etc., on the part of nearly every country in the world. It was added by this speaker that there is no subsidy at all for the shipbuilding industry, although in effect the offer of a ten million sterling loan to shipowners who will build new vessels in a ratio of one ton for every two tons scrapped is really also intended to benefit shipbuilder. A well-known shipping journal, commenting on the subject, states that the efficacy of this scrap-and-build plan is considerably reduced by the conditions which accompany the loan, with the result that the shipbuilder is actually finding little benefit from the scheme. The position, so far as British shipping is concerned, is rendered all the more

NOTES OF THE DAY

TIGHT-ROPE WALKING

We remember seeing a level-headed gentleman on the vaudeville stage perform a remarkable feat of concentration. "Ladies and gentlemen," he said, "I will now write on this blackboard up-side-down and backwards paragraphs which I read from left to right in this newspaper, at the same time adding in my head the totals of these columns of figures which my assistant is writing down beside me, and at the end of each phrase which I read from the paper I will tell any questioner the capital city of any state in the United States Union which he likes to mention." He did it. And there was not any trick to it. It would be better to compare M. Pierre Laval, the French Prime Minister, to this exceptional gentleman than to a tight-rope walker, though that is the much-worn simile generally employed for diplomats who place themselves in M. Laval's precarious position. He has announced that it will be his policy to offend neither Great Britain nor Italy and that at the same time he will respect and defend the League of Nations principles. If, as it seems, Great Britain is going to employ all her influence to uphold the League's authority in the matter of the Italo-Abyssinian dispute, and if Italy is going to endeavour to side-step the responsibilities incurred when she joined the Geneva assembly, France is going to have to tread a path of strict neutrality in order to avoid conflict with either of these powers. Yet if she attempts to force submission by Italy to the League Council she will undoubtedly find her conduct termed offensive by Rome. M. Laval may know the tricks of diplomatic tight-rope walking, but we doubt if he yet knows the formula which allows a statesman figuratively to "write up-side-down and backwards" at the same time answering questions and adding up columns of figures. The French policy in the present European crisis appears to be untenable.

MORE ABOUT OFFENCE

While France is endeavouring to be everybody's friend, and trying her best to avoid offending anybody, Italy seems to be going out of her way to aggravate England. Yesterday's reports of the demonstrations in Rome are significant. They show, first, that the prolonged newspaper campaign against Britain has borne fruit. Apparently it is the sort of fruit the authorities desired: a very bitter feeling against Britain. Britain stands in Italy's path, a path which leads to new prosperity and progress; a path, incidentally, which Rome has not trod for some centuries. This is the view the public seems to hold. And, in their high-spirited optimism, Italians are in the frame of mind to attempt to brush such resistance out of the way. Were it true that Britain was actively resisting Italy's ambitions, her natural desire to expand, one could understand the Italian feeling. But that the Italian public has been misled in this direction, and deliberately, there can be little doubt. And that they should err to such an extent as to believe that violent demonstrations can avert Great Britain from her policy shows the absurdity of their delusion. Britain is used to the Continent's misapprehension with respect to her international policies, is even toughened to criticism. Perhaps she is immune. In any event no-one expects reaction. But when the Italian temper turns to outbursts against Japan, we anticipate a spirited rejoinder. Japan's susceptibilities are somewhat tender and at the moment national feeling is as strong in Tokyo as it is in Rome. Here's tinder.

difficult from the fact that keen competition has to be faced from strongly subsidised foreign lines. The British Government, however, is not disposed to grant actual subsidies on a large scale, holding the view that the industry must play its part and must undertake measures of reorganisation considered necessary to place it on a sound basis. In the long run, this may be a wise course, but it is somewhat anomalous that other industries which do not serve national and Imperial needs to the extent that shipping does should have been able to secure direct assistance by way of subsidies from the Government.

BANKERS MUSTN'T MARRY

FROM THE EDINBURGH "EVENING DISPATCH"

Before taking a junior banker into their offices the Scottish banks make it a stipulation of his engagement that he shall not become a member of the ancient order of Benedictus until his salary has reached a stated minimum amount.

The bankers, on the other hand, complain that not only are their salaries absurdly low in the first instance, but that the rate of progress to the standard which opens the doorway to the altar is such a couldn't keep up with a walking funeral.

Even the most self-confident young bankman doesn't expect to start half way up the tree. He is prepared to commence his professional climb from terra firma, and hopes that by diligence, adaptability, and perseverance he will, in course of time, reach the particular branch on which he has set his ambitions, be that branch a tellership, an agency, or even something still higher. But, while he recognises that his rate of progress must be slow, he fails to see why, in many instances, the last few grains should be trickling through the sandgrasses of his thirties before a man has reached the minimum salary at which the bank permits him to greet a friend with, "Meet the wife!"

Influence may push a lad into a bank, but he will not remain there, even long enough to get a shine on the seat of his pants, unless he is prepared to tackle the business seriously, and to qualify for a permanent position by passing the examinations of the Bankers' Institute.

It must indeed be disheartening when, at the end of all his months of swotting, he contemplates the number of years which must still elapse till the hand which grasps his in congratulation will be throwing confetti at himself and his wife.

It may be asked, and at first sight there seems ample justification for the question, what have outsiders to do with the arrangement banks may make as regards the conditions of employment of their staffs? If young bankers have a grievance against their employers let the two of them fight it out among themselves.

But is the subject which is engaging the attention of the Scottish Bankers' Association one affecting banks and banks alone? May there not be more in it than catches the casual eye?

As the son of a banker, and with a son of my own in the banking profession, I have a more personal interest in bankmen than the average man-in-the-street. But it is not as the son or the sire of a banker but as a medical man that I view with uneasiness the attitude of bank authorities regarding the marriage of the younger members of their staffs.

The point at issue is not merely one of bank policy. It goes much deeper than that. It involves matters of grave social, economic, and medical importance.

He must indeed be an optimist who imagines that the young bankman harbours no feelings of discontent, not only with his own position but with the whole social fabric, when he sees men years younger than himself marrying, and being allowed to marry, on what they draw from the "dole," or at the offices of the Public Assistance Department.

Many of these youths have never done a day's work in their lives. Yet lightheartedly they take upon themselves the burden and responsibilities of a wife and family, and no one says them nay; while the young banker has to get along as best he can, possibly in "digs," waiting for the dawning of the day when, rheumatism and the infirmities of middle-age permitting, he will march with tottering footsteps to the altar to take his place beside his silver-haired bride.

It isn't always the big worries of life that play most havoc with one's nerves, and set on edge the organs which those nerves control. The daily pinpricks, feeble in themselves, but powerful in their cumulative effect, do more to bring about ill-health and inefficiency than the sudden, overwhelming blow.

Are the banks getting the best out of their young blood when, by their insistence on the rigid observance of an up-to-date, reasonable rule, they cause dissatisfaction and discontent among those who have served them faithfully for years, and subject them to the refined torture of being held up at the gates of a dream-land which they long to, but dare not, enter?

But, from a medical point of view, its influence on the young bankman himself is not the only, or most serious, aspect of the flat of the bank authorities. What of its effect on his ultimate wife, and possible children?

The anti-maternal-mortality and infant welfare crusades, of which so much has been heard during recent years, may so far have failed to accomplish what they set out to do, but they have been the means of establishing the fact that the first confinement is the one attended with most risk to the mother, and that the older the patient the greater the risk becomes. The health of the mother is reflected in that of the child, and should the health of the former be impaired as the result of what she has come through, not only may the child start life with a possible handicap, but it is likely to have to suffer all the disadvantages of having been reared by a C3 instead of an A1 mother.

Those who pay the piper are entitled to call the tune, and the banks are quite within their rights in making whatever stipulations they think fit as a condition of employment.

But are they acting wisely in their own interests in exposing the younger members of their staffs to these domestic risks, and to all anxiety and possible consequences attendant thereon, when by a slight adjustment of the rate of movement of their sliding scale of salaries they could bring so much happiness into the lives, and so greatly relieve the minds, of those on whose efficiency and enthusiasm the reputation and prosperity of the banks depend?

FATAL ACCIDENT

EUROPEAN-DRIVEN CAR HITS LITTLE BOAT GIRL

A Coroner's inquiry was held by Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistrate's yesterday afternoon, in the death of a nine-year-old girl, Kwok Tai-tam, who was knocked down by a car driven by J. B. Gardiner, assistant at Jardine Matheson & Company, along Causeway Bay Road on July 7. The girl sustained severe injuries to which she succumbed at the Government Civil Hospital the following day.

Mr. Schofield was assisted by a jury comprising Messrs. W. J. D. Roberts (Foreman), P. A. Elms, and L. D. Fernandes.

Dr. I. Newton, medical officer in charge of the Government Civil Hospital, said that the girl was admitted at 8 p.m. on July 7 with numerous injuries and died at 3.30 p.m. the following day. The body was identified by her father and mother. After describing the injuries, witness said that death was due to multiple injuries and shock. There was no sign of the girl having been run over. The injuries were consistent with the girl having been knocked down by a car.

Driver's Evidence

J. B. Gardiner, driver of the car No. 8374, said that on the afternoon of July 7 he was at Big Wave Bay with a party of friends. He left some time after 3 p.m., accompanied by Miss Ina Keown, and proceeded to Hongkong to obtain petrol, and then started back to Big Wave Bay. On the way, they came across Mr. Crozier's car, which had broken down, and Mrs. Crozier got into the back of the car. The car was running at a speed of about 25 to 30 m.p.h. when they were driving on the left of the road. They proceeded to Hongkong through Shaukiwan, and came to Causeway Bay Road, where he was doing between 25 and 30 m.p.h. He was driving on the left of the road. He saw a small girl running across the road from north to south. He sounded the horn, and applied the brakes. The child was on the right front of the car and seemed to disappear under the car. He stopped the car immediately after this.

Witness said he believed there was a crowd of children near a water hydrant on the left side of the road, and there seemed to be some children on the right side also. When he first saw the girl, she was very near the car and running hard. The car stopped a few yards away from the accident. He got out, and found the girl lying a little over a yard behind the car, and with help carried her steps. He then went to the French Hospital and returned with a nurse. The girl was taken to the French Hospital. He reported the accident at Day View Police Station, returning to the scene with Sergeant Blackmore, who took measurements, after which they went to Gloucester Road, where the brakes were tested.

When he saw the girl he swerved slightly to the left. It was not possible to swerve more than he had done because there was not enough time. The child was running obliquely towards the car. He had driven the car on not talking with either of the ladies. After applying the brakes, he pulled the car up in 30 to 35 feet. The car had a left-hand drive.

Miss Ina Keown corroborated Mr. Gardiner's evidence, but could not say anything about the accident itself, beyond the fact that her attention was suddenly drawn by the screaming of brakes and what appeared to be the breaking of glass. She was talking with Mrs. Crozier, seated at the back, at the time of the accident.

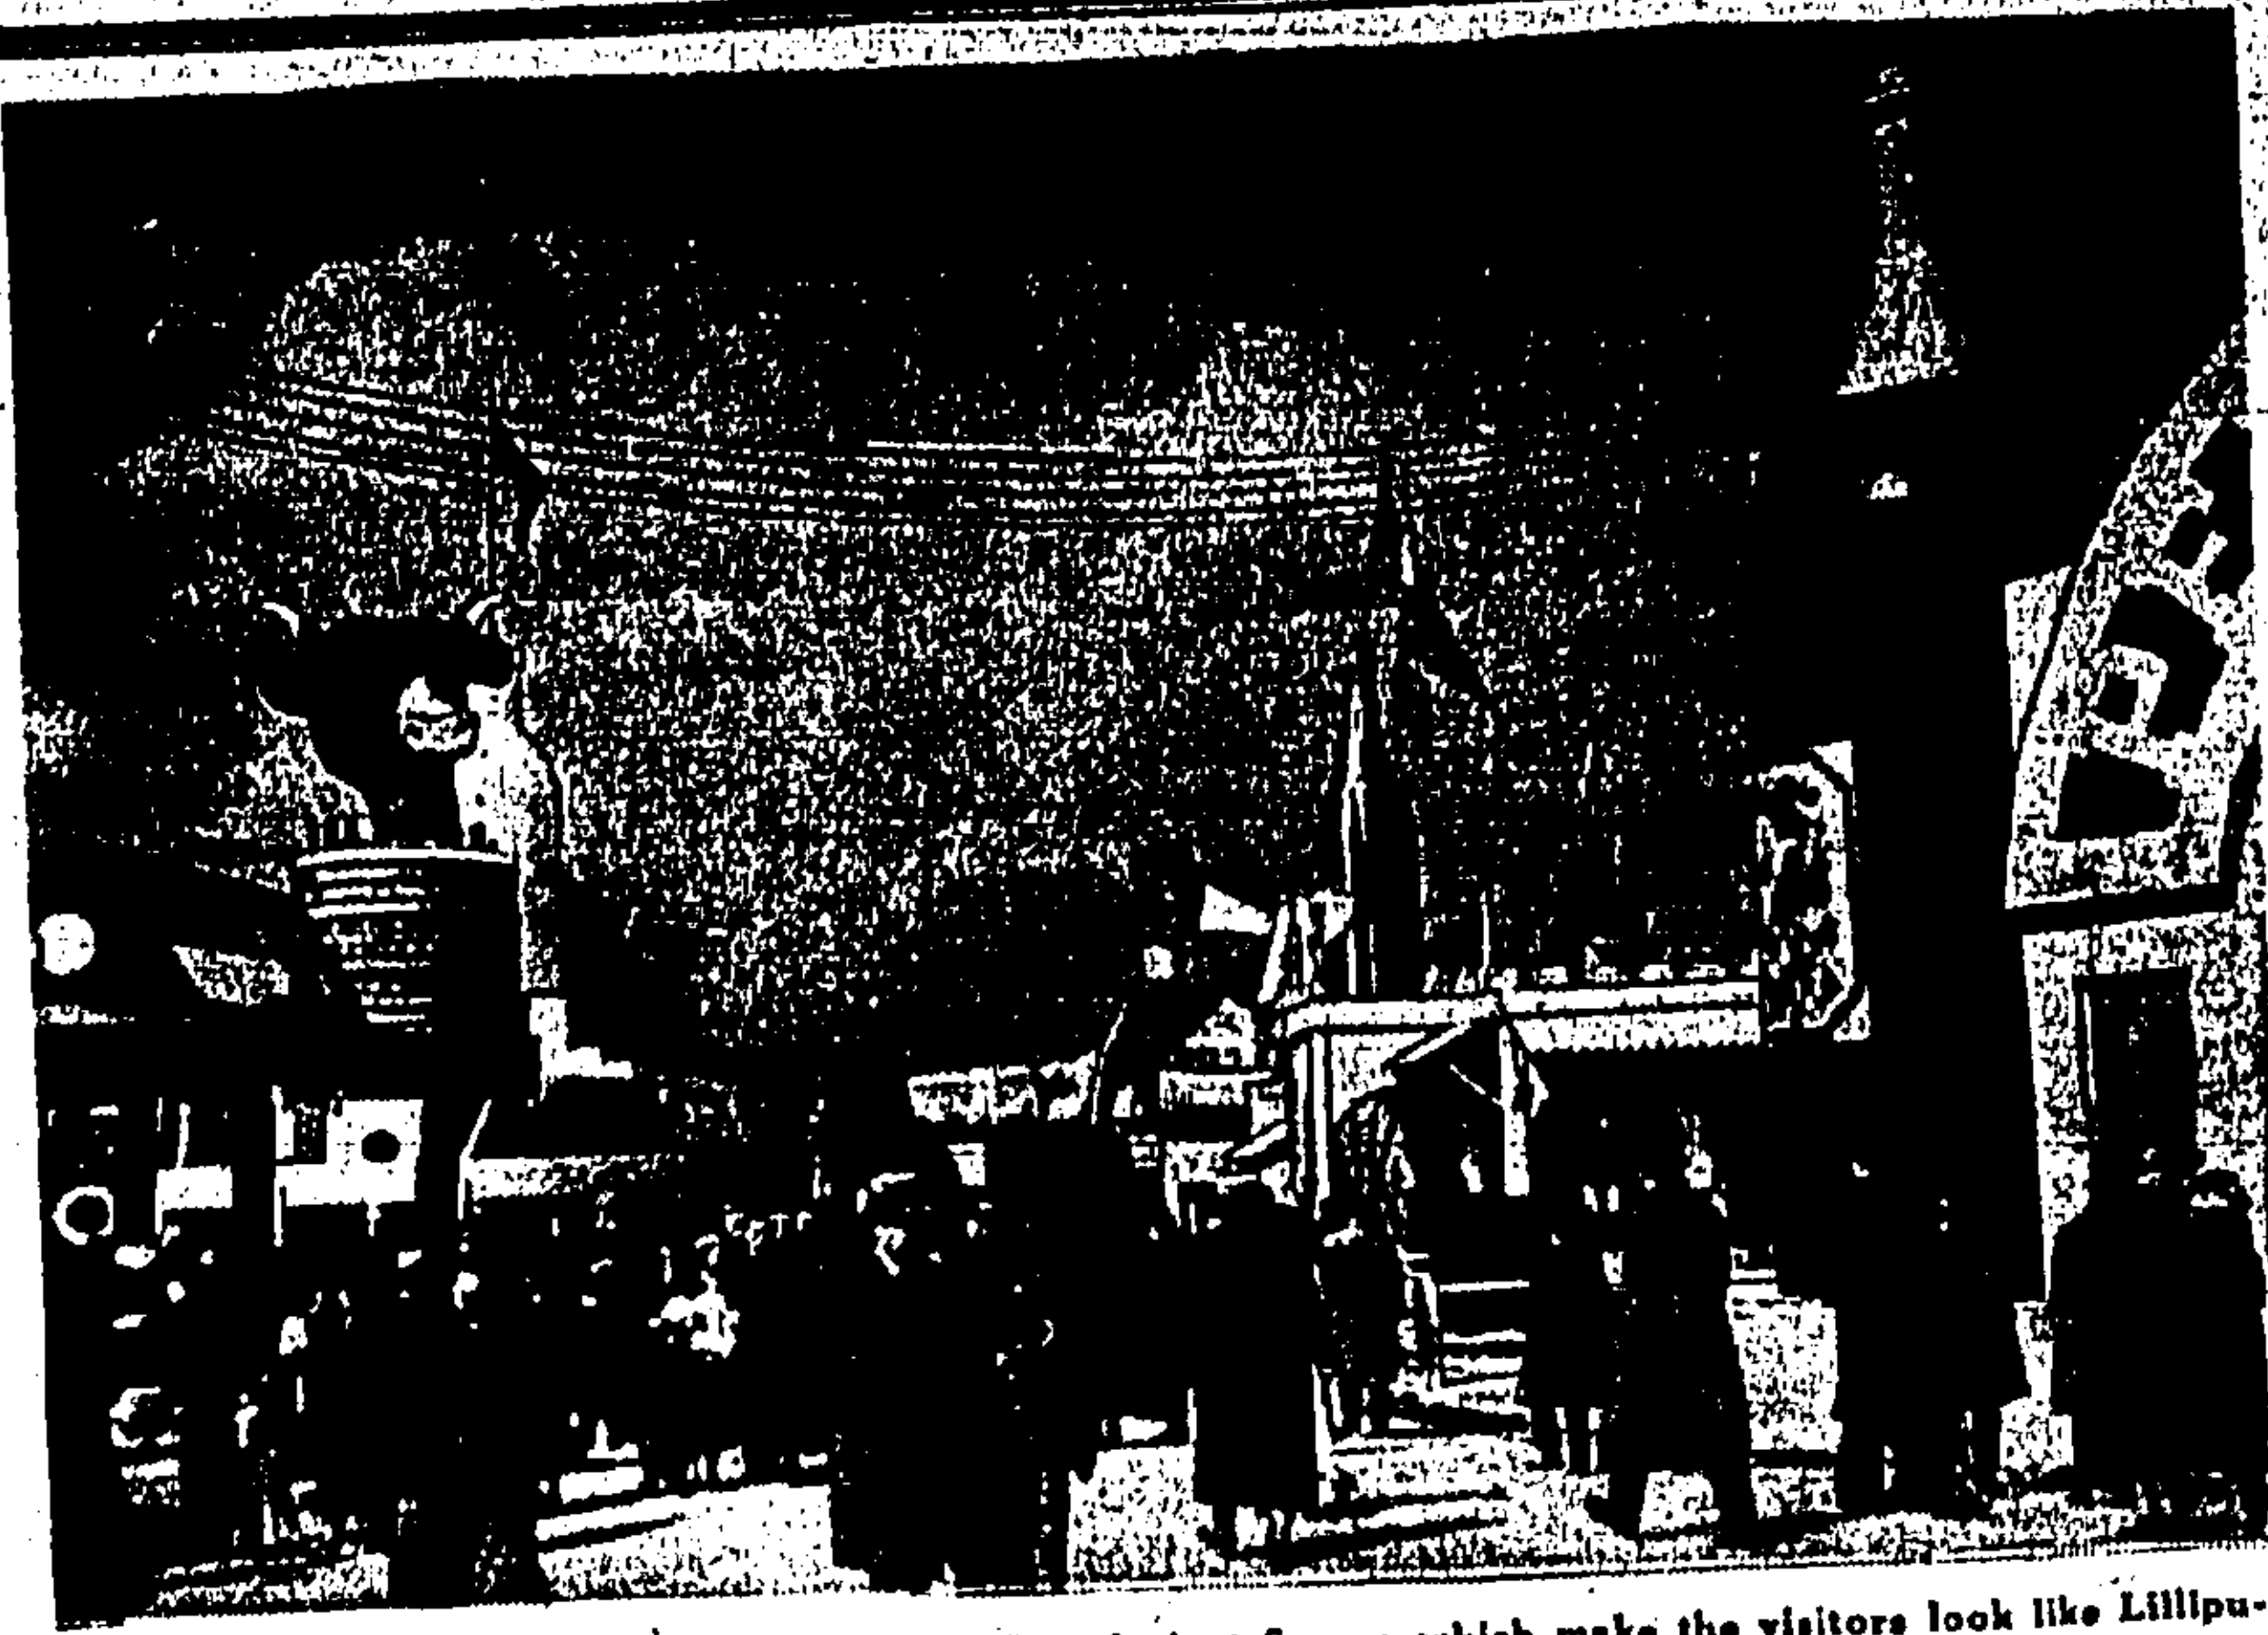

Mr. A. Allison, who resides at No. 14 Bay View Mansions, said that he saw two girls standing at the water's edge about fifty feet away from him. The deceased girl was shouting to someone on the veranda beneath him. She then suddenly dashed across the road and ran into the car, being struck on the left shoulder by the head lamp. She was thrown down under the car, and rolled over two or three times. He heard the brakes being applied, and the car pulled up. The car swerved towards the left after striking the child. He did not hear the horn sounded at 25 miles an hour.

After Kwok Lo, father of the deceased girl, had given evidence of identification, Kwok Ho, the ten-year-old sister who was with her at the time of the accident, said that she was engaged in the opposite side of the road to their boat. She saw her sister walking slowly away from the sea side when the car struck her. She (witness) did not hear the horn sounded. The hearing was adjourned until 2.30 p.m. on July 30, when Police evidence will be taken.

EXTRADITION ORDER

JURISDICTION TO HEAR APPLICATION ARGUED

The question of whether the Pulne Judge, Mr. Justice R. E. Lindell has the jurisdiction to hear an application for the quashing of an extradition order, in the form in which it was made, was the subject of legal argument before his Lordship at the Supreme Court yesterday afternoon.

The application concerned the committal order made by Mr. W. Schofield, the Senior Magistrate, at the investigation of the Canton authorities, against Tong Man-kin, alias Tong Chan-mung, who was alleged to have embezzled money from a pawn shop in Canton of which he was the manager. The application was made by the Chief Justice before the Chief Justice, who held the Magistrate's decision, and counsel for the fugitive, Mr. F. C. Jenkin, K.C., then made another application that the case be heard by another judge.

At yesterday's hearing, Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney-General, who appeared for the Crown, argued that his Lordship had the jurisdiction to hear the application in the form in which it was made. The application was made to the Pulne Judge, and made to his Lordship in person and counsel contended that it should have been made to the Full Court, which consisted of no less than two judges. He further argued that one judge alone could not hear an application of this kind unless it was made at vacation time.

The Only Course

Continuing, counsel said that the only course open to his Lordship was to refuse to deal with the application as it was made and to direct that the application should forthwith be made to the Full Court. The Crown, he said, was not obstructing the Crown's application in any way but rather facilitating it. The reason for his objection for the application to be heard by his Lordship was that he could know what to do in future cases.

Mr. Fraser then quoted authorities at great length in support of his contention, after which he said he could not find a single instance on record of a judge in England making an application of this kind. The practice in England was at all times to make the application through the Divisional Court, and in this Colony through the Full Court. If the application was thus made it could be heard, but if it was not then his Lordship had no jurisdiction to hear it.

Mr. Jenkin, who was instructed by Mr. F. X. D'Almeida, Esq., said that it was only the question of Full Court and not Full Court he would be willing to accede to the Crown's request in principle, however, any fugitive might go from one judge to another in term time, and therefore he must argue that that right did exist. His Lordship was adjourned until next Thursday, August 1, at 2.30 p.m.

THEIR MAJESTIES

London, July 26. The King and Queen are going on Tuesday to Cowes, where they will remain about a fortnight before returning to Buckingham Palace for a short stay. Their Majesties will then go to Sandringham Palace.—British Wireless.

Barber, the new Test Match success, making 80. Gloucester replied with 203. Batting a second time Yorkshire again being top scorer with 74. Gloucester failed in their second innings before Verity, who took six for 68, and could only muster 154. Essex made 85 runs at Clifton. In their first innings Essex made 100, to which Surrey replied with 281. In their second innings Essex did better, making 220; of which Nichols, the fast bowler, made 84. Surrey then collapsed, badly before Eastman (5 for 10), and were all out for 84.—Reuters.

HOCKEY MEETING

SUCCESSFUL YEAR RECORDED

NEW OFFICERS

A credit balance of $102.47 on the year's working was reported at the annual meeting of the Hongkong Hockey Association held in St. Andrew's Church Hall last evening, Mr. E. W. Hamilton presiding.

The annual report of the Association drew attention to the small attendance at the lectures given by the Hon. Mr. Phillips, M.C., and Surg. Capt. A. E. Phillips, R.N., and designed by the Unipres' Board to help prospective umpires and players, and records that one civilian and seven Army personnel passed the umpire qualifying examination. The umpire matches played the report named that at the invitation of the Macao Hockey Club, a Colony team, under the captaincy of Lt. C. C. Garthwaite, visited Macao on February 3, the score being 3-1 in favour of the Hongkong team. An attempt was also made to send an Interp team to Malaya. The project, however, failed owing to lack of financial support.

INTERNATIONAL TOURNEY

The second annual tournament between teams representing England, Scotland, Wales, Ireland, Germany, Portugal, China and India, resulted in a win for India by the final one against England in the final. The game, which was played on a magnificent ground at Shamshui, was a large crowd of spectators, which rendered the Marina Grounds unplayable. To meet the demand for a representative match between the Services and Civilians, the Council decided to make this match, played on December 16, resulted in a win for the Combined Services—the score 2-1.

At the request of the Shanghai German Club, Shanghai champions for two successive seasons, a programme was arranged whereby the Hongkong players represented the Colony and the Civilians. The Colony match, played on April 13, resulted in a win for the Colony, the score being 2-0. The Civilian match, played on April 15, was won by the Civilian, the score being 2-1. Lt. C. Garthwaite captained the Colony team and Mr. G. E. R. Divett, the Civilian.

A dinner dance was presided over by Mr. E. W. Hamilton at which the Shanghai visitors were the guests of honour, it being held in the Rose Room of the Peninsula Hotel on April 15. The number of persons present was 120. The function was an enjoyable one.

It is with pleasure that your Council announces that its application for affiliation to the parent body of the English Hockey Association has been approved. The Handbook for the season 1934/1935, which was published at the commencement of last season, met with a poor response only 65 copies having been sold as follows: Combined Colony & International 8; Colony 10; International 20. The thanks of the Association are

CHEAP TRAIN TRAVEL TO CANTON

FIFTY CENTS THIRD CLASS BY EXPRESS

A decision was reached yesterday by the Kowloon Canton Railway that as from August 1 they will run two additional cheap-fare express trains to Canton, and if the amount of traffic justifies it, further trains of a similar nature will be put on the run.

In an interview with representatives of the Press yesterday, Captain R. D. Walker, Manager of the Kowloon Canton Railway, stated that the up-train will leave Kowloon about 7.30 a.m. arriving at Canton about 11 a.m. and the down-train will depart from Canton about 3.30 p.m. and arrive at the Kowloon terminus about 7 p.m.

Only Third Class. These trains will consist of third class coaching stock only. There will be no midway stops on the journey except for water, and, of course, at train crossings. Tickets will be obtainable only at the Kowloon station or the Canton station. Captain Walker explained that the reason was that it must be under the full control of the Railway department otherwise agents at other stations may sell too many tickets and thus overcrowd the trains.

The rates charged will be 50 cents Hongkong on the journey from Kowloon to Canton, and 70 from Kowloon to Canton, on the return run. The rates will apply solely to these trains. There will be no return tickets issued.

Replying to a question as to whether the step was being taken owing to the cheap Canton steamer fares, Captain Walker replied that to a certain extent it was. He added that the move was caused indirectly by the steamers. "We are not entering on a rate war with the steamers," he emphasised.

The journey from Kowloon to Canton is a distance of 111 miles and is completed by the express trains in 3½ hours. Thus with the cheap fares on the additional trains passengers will be paying less than half-a-cent per mile!

due to all those who have assisted during the season in the use of grounds, accommodation for seating and changing, and umpires, by reason of which the game has been greatly assisted. The report and accounts were adopted on the motion of Lieut. C. C. Garthwaite, seconded by Mr. F. Singh.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The following officers were elected: President, Mr. E. W. Hamilton; Vice-President, Commodore C. G. Sedgwick, R.N.; Major M. H. A. Campbell and Mr. A. A. Dand; Secretary, Mr. F. A. Kemp; Treasurer, Mr. M. A. Xavier.

DERBYSHIRE DROP BACK IN COUNTY CRICKET RACE

RESULTS AT A GLANCE

COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP
 Lancashire (244 and 178 for 3) beat Glamorgan (249 and 184) by seven wickets.
 Sussex (415 and 84 for 3 wickets) beat Derbyshire (242 and 256) by seven wickets.
 Middlesex (184 and 146) beat Hampshire (233 and 148) by 53 runs.
 Nottingham (436 for 3 wickets, dec. and 103 for 4 wickets) beat Northants (213 and 324) by six wickets.
 Somerset (167 and 268) beat Kent (264 and 117) by 52 runs.
 Yorkshire (260 and 179 for 9 wickets, dec.) beat Gloucestershire (203 and 154) by 197 runs.
 Essex (160 and 220) beat Surrey (261 and 84) by 35 runs.

BEATEN BY SUSSEX AT DERBY

BY A MARGIN OF SEVEN WICKETS

ANOTHER CENTURY FOR HENDREN

Derbyshire, in the bid for county cricket championship honours, lost valuable ground today when they were beaten by Sussex at Derby by a margin of seven wickets, whereas Yorkshire, who are at the top of the table, won fairly convincingly from Gloucestershire at Hull.

The Parks brothers were engaged in a huge partnership for Sussex and it was due to their brilliant batting that the visitors to Derby were able to rattle up a total of 415 runs. James Parks, the elder of the two, preceded his brother to the wicket but Harry Parks was in better form and had 119 to his credit without being out. James Parks contributed 93 before dismissal.

Derbyshire failed to save the follow-on. They were dismissed for 242 runs and then for 256.

Sussex scored 84 runs for the loss of three wickets.

HEAVY SCORING BY NOTTS
 Nottingham were in scoring mood at Trent Bridge where they beat Northants by six wickets after averaging 77 runs per wicket. In their first innings the average was 145.33 runs per wicket.

Northants had first lease of the crease and scored 213 runs, in reply to which Notts knocked out 430 for the loss of three wickets declared.

Harlaston, one of the players asked to attend at Manchester for the fourth Test against the South Africans, contributed 172 without losing his wicket, while Walker had 105 runs to his credit when dismissed.

In their second innings Northants put on 324 runs, of which Bakewell, who has taken the place of Mitchell among England's nominated players, made 148 runs. Verity captured six of the wickets for 113 runs.

Notts made 103 for the loss of four wickets.

Lancashire, last year's champions, won against Glamorgan at Swansea by seven wickets.

Lavis alone, defied the Lancashire attack and only by five runs to top the century mark when Glamorgan put up a total of 249 runs. Lancashire were only a little more successful and their innings yielded 266 runs, of which Watson scored 94.

Glamorgan's second innings realised 194 and then Lancashire made 178 for three wickets.

CENTURY FOR HENDREN
 "Patsy" Hendren, the veteran England and Middlesex batsman, scored another century for his county when playing against Hampshire, Middlesex winning by 63 runs at Lord's.

The Hampshire team fell for 184 runs in their first innings and they were not able to dismiss Hampshire until the visitors had made 233 runs, but after Hendren scored his century he enabled Middlesex to make 284.

Hampshire were then dismissed for 146, leaving Middlesex with a 53 run margin.

In Hampshire's first innings Sims took eight wickets for 84 runs. Somerset beat Kent by 52 runs at Maidstone.

Somerset batting first made 167, (Continued on Page 7.)

ART LASKY NOT IN RUNNING

BEATEN BY AN UNKNOWN

JEWISH BOXER'S TITLE QUEST

New York, July 10.

Art Lasky, the lanky Jewish heavyweight who was one of James J. Braddock's stepping stones on his road to the title of heavyweight champion of the world, saw his hopes of a return bout with Braddock fade here when a comparative newcomer to the game scored a technical knockout over him.

Ford Smith, a husky young man from Kalispell, Montana, was the villain of the piece when he cut Lasky's eye so badly in the fourth round that the referee decided to stop the fight.

Until this misfortune occurred, Lasky was leading on points. The blow, however, caused the blood to flow freely and Lasky's vision was badly blurred. Thereafter, Ford Smith had little trouble in outboxing the veteran.

Lasky lost a decision to Braddock in Madison Square Garden in his last fight before the latter met and beat Max Baer for the title.

AUSTIN'S DEFEAT BY BUDGE

Wimbledon Battles Royal Before The Queen

By H. S. SCRIVENER

London, July 2.

Her Majesty the Queen came to Wimbledon yesterday and was enthusiastically welcomed. She arrived shortly after 3 p.m. while the first match on the centre court was in progress, stayed to tea and for quite an appreciable while after that.

It was a timely visit, for yesterday was the day on which the battle of the strong in the men's singles began in earnest. Each pair of combatants for places in the semi-finals were either two seeded players or a seeded player and another who had beaten a seeded player en route to the last eight.

The four semi-finalists in their order of opposition are Perry and Crawford, who met in the final last year when Perry dethroned the title holder, and Budge and Von Cramm. Budge's defeat of Austin was, of course, the sensation of the day.

SURVIVAL OF THE FITTER

This was the third match on the Centre Court, and I think that, steering clear of the mistake which Sir Thomas Lipton made when he said, "May the best man win!", I may say that there was a good illustration of the survival of the fitter. After Austin had won the first set by a perfect display of the way in which he makes his volleys openings and turns them to account, at 6-3, the tide turned in Budge's favour when the second set had run to 18 games, and Budge had won it.

From an Austin point of view that set had lasted just a bit too long. Budge is the sturdier man of the two, and Americans can stand heat waves much better than Englishmen. The fact that Austin, even as it was, kept going for over two hours and was only beaten by 7-5 in the fourth set, by the most brilliant young player of 20 years of age that I have seen in England for many a long day, shows that on a less exhausting afternoon he might have prevailed.

Budge has a backhand which is a bludgeon, and a forehand which is full of fury. Austin had to rely mainly on his volleys and skill, and I can only summarise these extraordinarily long four sets by saying that Budge's pasty complexion came into their own eventually when Austin's stamina began to fall him—not appreciably, but just enough to make a difference. In the fourth set which was lost about as narrowly as a set can be lost.

The proceedings had opened on the centre court with a match of two hours and a quarter's duration between Crawford and Wood, who was beaten in the semi-final by Perry last year. The play at first was by no means up to semi-final standard; too many errors, both of judgment and execution, were made on both sides. Crawford was evidently out to win by baseline play and by prodding Wood's backhand for all he was worth.

Wood was volleys as much as he dared and not making much headway for his ground play was not good enough to enable him to do so and Crawford's passing shots were pretty good. He had a service game which would have given him a 5-2 lead, although he scored two service aces, and later he lost his next service to give Crawford the first set at 6-4 against him, with the score at 40-30 against him, had plucked an easy volley into the net.

In the second set Crawford, with Wood still playing indifferently, walked away to 5-1, but then handicapped himself by losing his service to love. He very nearly lost another, but managed to hold it for 6-3.

WOOD HITS BACK

In the third set Wood raised his game appreciably, and after a series of give-and-take, in which Crawford sacrificed a 1-0 service lead, Wood, having just won his own service to love, captured Crawford's for 8-6.

Crawford again sacrificed an early service lead in the fourth set, but got another later which he owed to have held; but Wood, now volleys with deadly concentration and taking a good deal out of himself while so doing, pulled him back and later broke through him for 7-5 on the second set point. But he had about reached the end of his tether, and Crawford, realising this, now began to come up himself and to throw in a judicious drop stroke here and there. The up-ford was an easy 6-1 set to Crawford.

MENZEL'S TENACITY

Perry on Court 1 took some time to shake off Menzel, but did it thoroughly as soon as the fury of Menzel's early attack began to abate. The three games with which Perry won the first set from 8-7 down were won to 15, 10, and 10. Menzel then opened the second set with a love game, but Perry only lost one point in the next 8, and four more while going out at 6-1. Another 6-1 set to Perry ensued, but Menzel this time managed to reach deuce several times. Perry is going great guns.

Von Cramm gave us another exhibition of his powerful play, which has little of the battle-axe about it, but is of the same delightfully smooth

DAVIS CUP

Anglo-American Match Programme

London, July 26.
 There has been a last minute change in the United States Davis Cup Team. Allison is, after all, playing in the singles.

There have been doubts as to whether his current form has been good enough.

The following is the draw:
 Saturday: Austin versus Allison and Perry versus Budge.
 Monday: Hughes and Tuckey versus Allison and van Ryn.
 Tuesday: Austin versus Budge, and Perry versus Allison.

Critics of Britain are likely to retain the Cup. Perry is expected to win both singles, and Austin at least one.

The doubles will almost certainly go to Allison and van Ryn, who are considered the best pair in the world.

The matches are being played on grass courts at Wimbledon.—Reuters.

and rhythmic type as that of Austin, while the young Australian, McGrath, of two-handed fame, and the unseeded over-thrower of Allison, America's No. 1.

McGrath was obviously mastered for a while after winning the first three games and was 6-4 and 6-2 down when he literally took his courage in both hands whenever he could and went all out for the third set, which he won by holding 4-2, lead for 6-4. But after that von Cramm won a 6-1 set which very few other people could have won as relentlessly as he did from McGrath.

MRS. MOODY'S LOST SET

In the women's singles we had no actual surprises, but some narrow escapes. Mrs. Moody was concerned in one of them. She dropped the first set to Elena E. Cernkova, of Czechoslovakia, who, since her arrival in England, has enhanced an already high reputation. Realising that do or die methods are the best to essay against Mrs. Moody, she hit so lustily that she had won the first set before Mrs. Moody could rise to a situation which threatened to become serious. She was not safe until she had banked a hard-won second set.

Of the other seeded players, Miss Bours and Miss Sperry, both had easy wins and so did Miss Jozsefowa. (Unseeded) against Mrs. Whittington (likewise unseeded). (Continued on Page 9.)

CRICKET TEST

ENGLAND DISMISSED CHEAPLY

SOUTH AFRICANS AT LORD'S

(By A.E.R. Gilligan)

London, July 2.

The second day of the second Test match will always be remembered as South Africa's great day of the 1935 tour. Wade's men accomplished their finest feat by dismissing a powerful English batting side for 198. They followed it up by fine attacking and defensive batting, hitting the loose balls and being content to keep the various types of deliveries—shooters, balls that popped and good length ones—out of their wicket.

If South Africa wins her first Test match in England, it will be due entirely to Wade's brainy captaincy. Balaak's wonderful two hours and 20 minutes' bowling on end, some excellent catches by the Springbok fieldsmen and to Bruce Mitchell's splendid batsmanship.

Wyatt and Hammond deserve full marks for the way they attacked the bowling when play was resumed. Runs came too quickly for Wade's liking, and with the batsmen hitting out he showed a very shrewd piece of captaincy in giving Dalton the ball at the Nursery end.

SUPERB RUNNING CATCH
 Dalton removed the two obstacles from the South African viewpoint, though Wyatt's dismissal was due to a superb running catch at deep mid-wicket by Nourse. Wyatt, let me add, played splendidly.

There is no doubt that the Lord's wicket was of tremendous assistance to the spin bowlers, but we must give due credit to two very fine catches by Bell and Bruce Mitchell.

Bell took the ball inches from the ground at very silly mid-on, whilst Mitchell made an extremely difficult catch at slip look very simple when he took a ball which was travelling fast away to his left and fairly high up. Mitchell again proved what a really first-class slip fielder he is, and I would compare him to Jack Gregory, the best slip Australia has ever had.

The England score of 100 for three wickets changed to 121 for 6 when Langridge and Fairmond came together. Langridge faced the position with rare courage and Fairmond deserves great praise for the way he withdrew a keen attack.

There was a grimace about Farmond's batting, which had a style all its own; he watched the ball on to his bat as a cat watches a mouse.

THE BOWLING HERO
 At the end of the England innings Verity made some pretty strokes, but it had been South Africa's morning, with Balaak as the hero. Changing to the pavilion end yesterday he went on bowling to the end, his figures during the second stage being: 26 overs, 6 maidens, 42 runs and 4 wickets.

The opinion during the lunch interval was that South Africa would be out for 180 in the second innings—the reason being that the wicket had broken and that the England spin bowlers, Verity in particular, would reap a harvest.

But the reverse happened. The wicket remained precisely the same as it had done during the pre-lunch interval, but the South Africans batted better than the England team had done.

Bruce Mitchell played a very fine innings, but the turning point of the game came when our own Tom Mitchell missed a not too difficult c.

SHARKEY DREAMS OF COME-BACK

MAN WHO KNOCKED OUT CHAMPION

WILLING TO MEET BRADDOCK

Boston, Mass., July 16.

Jack Sharkey, like almost every other defeated heavyweight champion of the world, has dreams of a comeback.

Until James J. Braddock created the biggest upset of the boxing world of this century by defeating Max Baer, Sharkey was quite content with running his tavern.

When Braddock was crowned champion, however, Sharkey remembered that he had knocked out Braddock in three rounds in 1929.

Encountering a receptive newspaper reporter at his bar, Sharkey announced that he would be quite willing to meet the present champion if he could do so without having to battle his way through a series of elimination contests.

While Sharkey did not exactly push himself forward he broke down without being questioned and admitted that he had recently done seven weeks' training in Maine, and that he had been sparring at the gymnasium recently.

The former champion's aspirations are not likely to be fulfilled, for promoters, boxing commissions and those holding the championship are inclined to give away chances at the title to fighters who have not fought their way to a contending position.

Braddock, at the time Sharkey knocked him out, was the former champion's sparring partner.—Reuters.

SPEEDWAY RACING

TEAM TO GO TO AUSTRALIA

The Speedway Board of Control have decided to send an official England team to Australia this winter.

A series of five Tests have been arranged, three at Sydney and two at Melbourne. Eight riders will make the journey, leaving in mid-October and returning in April 1936.

Eric Langton, the present England captain, will not be available, and b. at an early stage. This mistake made a colossal difference to the position of the game because if Bruce Mitchell had gone at this juncture anything might have happened.

Rowan helped Mitchell in an excellent stand of 104 for the second wicket, and both batsmen, though not free, played ideal cricket for their side.

A FIGHTING BATSMAN
 Mitchell was perfectly magnificent and gave a great fighting exhibition. This is his first hundred of the tour and his second against England.

The English bowling was always good and the fielding superb, with Wyatt as the star at silly mid-off. He and Wade were two outstanding examples to their sides.

When trying to save a boundary Sutcliffe trod on the ball and on his retirement with a strained muscle Hart of Middlesex (England's twelfth man) fielded well in the deep.

Amos, of Kent, is also suffering from a pulled leg muscle and we must all hope devoutly that these two stalwarts will be fit to-day for the great task in hand.

The official figures yesterday showed that 20,128 spectators paid for admission and the estimated attendance was 30,000.

HANKOW RAILWAY

HONGKONG LINE WITH NORTH NEXT YEAR

Shanghai, July 26. Linking of North and South China by railway for the first time in history, will be an accomplished fact within a year, when the Canton-Hankow Railway is finally completed.

The road, victim of political intrigue and financial mishaps for more than forty years, has progressed in fits and starts as funds have been made available but until now, despite its name, it has reached neither Canton nor Hankow.

Now, definite assurance has been given that the line will be completed and in operation before the end of next year, and a long dream of aid to China's unity appears to be coming true.

Mr. H. A. Ling, the British-trained engineer-in-chief of the uncompleted stretch from Chuchow to Shaochow, is authority for the statement that the end of the long task is in sight. He says he has the funds available for the needed work, and ties and tracks on the unfinished section of the railway are already being placed.

What the completion of the road will mean to China only a long-time resident of the country can understand. To-day it takes at least fifteen days to travel from Canton to Hankow, necessitated by a long and round-about route which includes Shanghai. When the line is finished the trip will require about 32 hours.

The new railway will open up a vast new area to the big trading centres of the nation. It will serve as a means of close contact between North and South China, heretofore separated by differences of language, economic system, and culture. It will give access to the rich interior of Hunan province, and will afford a trunk line to be linked up with highway and branch railway connections to Kwangsi and Kwichow Provinces and even to remote Szechuan, lately over-run by Communist-bandit hordes. China is badly handicapped by the difficulty of getting her products out of even comparatively accessible districts. The new rail line is expected to obviate that handicap to a great extent.

Engineering Difficulties

Engineering difficulties in building the roadbed are among the greatest in the world, experts have said. Countless excavations and fills have already been made in the mountainous terrain over which the trains will pass. Hundreds of bridges, tunnels and cuts have been completed. At the end of the

FUKIEN ROADS

2,500 KILOMETRES READY AND BUILDING

Foochow, July 26. Road building has been in full swing in Fukien, says a report issued by the Fukien Provincial Government.

No less than 1,500 kilometres of high ways, linking up all counties in the Province, have been completed. There are also 1,000 kilometres under construction.

When the network of road building in Fukien is finished through communication between Kiangsi, Kwangtung, Chekiang and this Province (Fukien) will be possible, —Wah Kiu Yat Po.

year, when travellers make the trip in modern railway coaches, they will be able to realize that the completion of the project means a significant and important step forward in China's process of modernisation and reconstruction.

The road dates back to 1896-1898, at which time an American syndicate granted a loan of U.S. $20,000,000 for the proposed route. The Canton-Samsul branch, a mere 80 miles, was opened in 1904, and section stopped.

It was not until 1915 that the line was extended to Shaochow, only 20 miles farther north of Canton. Two years elapsed before additional mileage was constructed. But in 1917 work started on the northern end of the line, from Wuchang, across the Yangtze river from Hankow. After additional loans had been obtained, the Wuchang-Changsha section, about 230 miles, was opened.

In the meantime further work went on in the South, making a total of about 180 miles extending north of Canton. Thus two sections of the line were completed, but the middle section, approximately 275 miles, remained unfinished, and for 13 years no efforts were made to advance the project.

In 1929, however, the Ministry of Railways negotiated with the Belgian Boxer Indemnity Fund and the Sino-British Boxer fund and obtained financial grants which permitted the completion, in September, 1933, of the Shaochow-Lochang section, about 35 miles, leaving 240 miles from Chuchow to Lochang to be completed.

Further negotiations with the British fund resulted in substantial additional loans for materials and labour, giving the real impetus to the final completion of the line. Work is going forward at a good rate, and the end of the work is expected well before the close of 1936. —United Press.

3 MONTHS ON BISCUITS AND MILK

Woman's Digestive Troubles

Everyone who is subject to any form of indigestion should know of this woman's experiences. Advice from one who has had such severe attacks is advice worth having. She writes—

"I suffered from indigestion, gas-trills and constipation, and was so very ill, I had (on medical advice) to live on soda biscuits and milk for three months. Well, a friend advised me to take Kruschen, and now I am pleased to say my troubles are ended. I can eat and enjoy a good meal without any painful after-effects, my skin is clearer—in fact quite clear—and there is no sign of constipation. I would advise anyone suffering the same to take Kruschen." —(Mrs.) M. E. L.

The immediate effect of the six salts in Kruschen is to promote a natural flow of the digestive and other vital juices of the body. Soon after you start on Kruschen you will find that you are able to enjoy your food without any distressing after-effects. And as you persevere with the "little daily dose" you will see that the relief which Kruschen brings is lasting relief.

NEW BOND ISSUE

FOR RECONSTRUCTION IN KWANTUNG

Canton, July 26.

It is officially hinted that $5,000,000 of reconstruction bonds will be issued about the middle of next month or not later than September.

It is understood that the authorities have decided not to have the new bonds disposed of to the people, but among the various banks only.

The proceeds will be entirely devoted to reconstruction projects, including the development of the sugar and textile industries. —Reuter.

STEEL HELMETS

ALL BRANCHES IN PRUSSIA DISSOLVED

Berlin, July 26.

The Steel Helmets, the official organization of Germany's ex-service men, has been dissolved throughout Prussia and their property confiscated for alleged subversive activities.

This follows a series of similar measures. There has always been considerable rivalry between the Brown Shirts and the Steel Helmets, despite the latter's whole-sale conversion to Nazism. —Reuter's Special Service.

SERIAL STORY

Summer Sweethearts

By Mabel McMillott © 1935, NEA Service, Inc.

CHAPTER XXXII

Violet Mercer had nerved herself for the interview. It was, she felt, a matter of time before she would face the man whose face she had seen in her dark eyes the day before had decided her.

Mr. Stryker's secretary said she would see if her employer was busy. Violet, looking about her, found everything as unchanged. Seventeen years since she herself had been 20, and enmeshed behind that desk (or at least, one very like it), feeling important and thrillingly adult.

Violet Stryker had not been white when it had been black—ebony black with a deep, rich wave in it. He had exuded a sort of power. She had been exceedingly young and inexperienced. Small wonder she had fallen in love with him.

And in love she had fallen, head over heels. There had been no reservations in the affection she had poured out upon him, this motherless girl who had been poor and restricted and unhappy. He had been flattering, kind to her—merely that, at first. Later there had been little attentions, presents, the extraordinary homage of certain veiled looks.

He had known the game so well. And she—well, she had not even the first inkling of the rules.

His wife, he had told her, was ill, had been an invalid for years. Divorce was out of the question. Proud, loving, fierce in her loyalties, stormily innocent, she had believed all of this. It had taken a day at a seaside resort whether he had summoned her, ostensibly on a business errand, to open her eyes. She had seen him then for what he really was—a rich man greedy for all life's sensations, loving her but for the new experience she promised.

Horror-struck, she had shrunk from him. She had been too essentially honest to face the inevitable difficulties of the affair he offered her. But the struggle she had fought followed, had been a frightful one. Temptation, time and again, had almost overwhelmed her. She had loved him so terribly.

In the end her strength had been superior to his. She had gone away, left him empty. She had thought for a long time, that she hated all men.

She thought of this as she waited for the trim young woman in the exquisitely cut dark frock to return. Was Violet having his usual hour of challenge with this girl? She rejected the thought because the girl looked cool and hard and certain of herself. Besides, Violet now was definitely "an older man." The male charm and strength she had so admired in him were no longer so powerful.

"Mr. Stryker will see you now," the secretary looked Violet over appraisingly, calculating to an inch the definitely modish costume of an inner silk, charming but inexpensive.

She never spoke to us of her ambitions, he said. Jealousy, I think, I think it is extremely odd of her to confide in perfect strangers. He smiled, as if terminating the interview. "I'm sorry but I'm afraid we must let the New Mexican idea ride just now. She must stay at home."

By the memory of Katharine's despairing voice Violet and strengthened her for what she had to say. "Very well, then. If you won't, you won't. I warn you, though, it may be unpleasant."

Violet smiled and went into the inner office.

He had risen to greet her; and there was just a trace of apprehension in his suave manner. Violet went straight to the point. "It's about Katharine."

His brows drew together in a frown. "My daughter? Ah, yes, you know her. I forgot."

Violet suppressed the smile that rose to her lips. He never forgot anything. Like the facts that one day might be useful to him were always pigeonholed somewhere in his memory.

"She's anxious to go on a trip with a friend of ours, Miss Vincent. She'd have a chance to paint. Everly."

He shook his head. "She thinks Katharine has talent that should be encouraged."

She chose her words with the greatest caution. Not for worlds would she have him suspect the secret that ate at Katharine's very soul. "My wife and I talked it over last night. Mrs. Stryker is very much opposed to it. Later we may run over to Europe with her. She can look in on the galleries."

Violet suppressed a shudder at the thought of the unlikely girl trailing after the sun, middle-aged people, wrapped in her own black thoughts.

"I rather hoped you would say 'yes.'"

His keen eyes raked her handsome, expressive face. You considered this important enough to come down town to see me about it?

She shrugged her shoulders. "I was in the neighbourhood. . . . Just thought I'd drop in."

"Katharine is a difficult child," Violet Stryker mused, putting the tips of his beautifully manicured fingers together and regarding them. "She seems to have made friends with you. Her step-mother and I are sometimes baffled by her."

Violet felt almost an impulse of pity. Perhaps he wasn't as sure as he seemed. He himself, he thought. Perhaps there was a chink in that selfish armour. She tried another tack. "I know you want to do what's best for her," she began. "We do feel she might blossom out in a different atmosphere. My husband and I think it is very good. Have you seen her flower sketches?"

By the darkening of his face she knew she had touched some raw spot.

"What do you mean?" He had risen, as she had. They faced each other across an expanse of gleaming mahogany.

"I mean," said Violet easily, "that I've often been tempted to tell your daughter about our association. I've never quite got to the point."

"You wouldn't dare!" His eyes flashed.

"Ah, wouldn't I?" She snapped open a point-point compact and looked at herself in its mirror.

"You'd be a fool then."

"Ah, dear Violet," cried the woman, with the voice of a dove and (she hoped) the wisdom of the serpent, "but didn't you tell me once I was just that? When I'd refused to go away on a little trip with you? It wouldn't have looked well in the newspapers later, would it?"

She loathed herself for the words and the manner, but she kept the memory of Katharine before her.

"I don't know what you're talking about."

"Don't you?" said Violet slowly. "Really, don't you remember? Because, if not, I have three letters which might refresh your memory."

Sure of her, her youth and innocence and admiration, he had written them to her that wild spring.

"You're out of your mind," he threw a quick, apprehensive glance at the door.

"Perhaps I am."

"I don't know what my daughter's life means to you," Violet said slowly. "But every right, I ought to hate her. Once I did—just the thought of her, I mean; when I was young and reckless and wanted everything my way. You told me once you would have risked a divorce—everything, if it weren't for the child."

"What do you want me to do?" He was staring at her now with a new respect. Violet was a bit of a bully, she reminded herself, keeping her sense of triumph carefully hidden behind a mask of indifference. He always admired people who stood up to him.

"I want you to let Katharine go west with Miss Vincent, have her try at painting. It's a sort of school they have there. Open air stuff. She'll thrive on it. She's been looking badly for a while. I think she could stand a change."

He hesitated for the space of half a minute. Then he nodded. It was like him to give in gracefully, once he had decided the affair was out of his hands. Almost urbane was his smile, and his manner when he spoke again.

"Well, you may be right about it. Yes. Parents often are too close to their children to see the best for them. Thank you, Violet. I'll win my wife over. She's always over-anxious about Katharine. She feels the responsibility keenly—another woman's child, after all."

He carried it off well. Not a hint of the resentment he must have felt. (To Be Continued.)

CINEMA NEWS

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

The second of the Dickens tales to be turned out by Universal to ride the crest of the English novel's screen wave, "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," showing to-morrow at the King's Theatre, measures up as first class audience entertainment. It offers an outstandingly fine, macabre characterisation by Claude Rains as the opium-addicted, child-master of an English village, who plays his nephew because of violent jealousy to motivate the dreadful mystery. It is well directed by Stuart Walker, who howls without being awed by Dickens into character confusion, but also without losing the old English flavour which gives engrossing newness to the offering. It has been excitingly translated by Leopold Atlas and Bradley King in the adaptation, and John L. Balderston and Gladys Unger in the screen play, with a satisfactory result. The best of the novel for the novel which Dickens never finished. Smart showmanship went into Edmund Grainger's production guidance, and Douglas Montgomery, Heather Angel, David Manners, Francis L. Sullivan, and Valerie Hobson lead an excellent supporting cast. In giving the tale body and conviction, Rains puts deep intensity into the impersonation of the strange monster, who hates David Manners because he believes his ward is about to marry Heather Angel, whom Rains loves.

"Little Minister"

Katharine Hepburn is now starred in the most colourful production of her remarkable career. "The Little Minister," which is EKO-Radio's picturization of (Sir James Barrie's immortal story. The film comes to the Star Theatre to-morrow. The scene in which the young lawyer, Barrie's birthplace, is shown in contrast with the famous Rintoul Castle, which was built after the style of the old Norman castle, with high ceilings, stone-mullioned and leaded glass windows and huge stone stairways. In the village are seen the homes of the poor weavers, the town hall, the public square, Rob Dow's blacksmith shop, old Nanny's humble cottage, the manse of the Little Minister, the Kirk, and the mill and the lock-out scene, which gives striking contrast to the wealth of the village.

Against this background Katharine Hepburn's graceful, surprising vehicle, Barrie's picture, is a heavy comedy.

creates the quaint charm and events in the village of Thrum, with all the moving romance of which Barrie alone is capable—and which Miss Hepburn so ably interprets with her inexhaustible resource of power. John Beal portrays the Little Minister, and Alan Hale plays Rob Dow. Richard Wallace directed.

"Age of Indiscretion"

Another great problem of to-day has found its way to the screen as a piece of enthralling entertainment in "Age of Indiscretion," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's dramatic story of a millionaire's dramatic fight for the custody of a child divorce. Dealing with a situation often echoed in the courts of to-day, the new picture is due to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre with Paul Lukas, May Robson, Madge Evans, Ralph Forbes and David Jack Holt. Miss Robson plays the battling mother-in-law who gets to court and uses her millions to wrest guardianship of his son from Lukas, following the divorce of a phlegmatic, faithless wife. The dramatic climax is in the courtroom where the veteran actress addresses the Judge is reported to be the most gripping courtroom episode since Lionel Barrymore's famous trial scene in "Free Soul."

Another sensational denouement expected at the Queen's Theatre, under the highlights of "Age of Indiscretion" are many and include the crisis in Lukas' publishing firm, the airplane flight to Reno, the dramatic moment in which Lukas learns of his wife's surprise divorce, the scene in which he breaks the news to his child, Miss Robson's plot to gain custody of the child and the bitter legal fight interspersed among the dramatic moments are a number of comedy moments. "Edward Ludwig directed."

"Born to Be Bad"

Racketeering, lawyers, doctors and insurance "adjusters" know, under the generic term "ambulance chasers" come in for a showing up in "Born to Be Bad," showing to-day at the Picture Palace. In this 20th Century Picture, produced by Joseph P. Kovel and directed by Joseph P. Kovel, starring vehicle, Richard Wallace and Cary Grant, the picture will see how "ambulance chasers" engineer a heavy comedy.

against a wealthy man following a trivial accident. They conspire to prove that a truck owned by him has caused a small boy's life, whereas the boy has actually been little more than scratched. The machinations of the boy's scheming young mother play an important part in the frame-up.

Loretta Young plays the mother, a "customer's girl" in the cloak and suit trade, whose beauty is matched only by her unscrupulousness. Jackie Kelly, making his debut in a feature length film following appearances on the New York stage with Fay Bainter and Madge Kennedy, is seen as the boy. Cary Grant portrays the wealthy victim. Lowell Sherman directed. "Born to Be Bad" from a story by Ralph Graves. Harry Green, Henry Travers and Paul Harvey are featured with the Kelly boy in the supporting cast of this United Artists release.

"Carnival"

"Carnival," Columbia's comedy-romance featuring Lee Tracy, Sally Eilers, Jimmy Durante and that brilliant child sensation, Dickie Walters has its final showings to-day at the Queen's Theatre. Robert Riskin front rank screen scenario and the man responsible for the adaptations of "Lady for a Day," "It Happened One Night" and "Broadway Bill" wrote the story and screen play for "Carnival," which Walter Lang directed.

It tells the human, heart-warming story of a carnival puppeteer, who tries to keep his motherless infant son from being taken away from him. Jimmy Durante, the baby's comic god-father, and Sally Eilers, as the pianist at Tracy's show who is deeply in love with him remain faithfully with him through all his exciting, hilarious adventures. Others in the cast of "Carnival" include Florence Rice, Thomas Jackson, Fred Kelsey and Lucille Ball.

FEAR OF FASCISM

MAY LEAD TO REVOLUTION IN RED PROCEDURE

Moscow, July 26.

The Seventh World Congress of the Comintern, opened to-day, 600 delegates from 65 countries attending.

The Comintern, it is thought, will make a supreme effort this year to extend Communist activities throughout the world, and to take the lead in the capitalist depression.

Ernst Thälmann, the German Communist leader, said that the Comintern must not only defend the interests of the working class, but also the interests of the oppressed peoples.

THE SUPER-SUBSTITUTE FOR MARBLE

Terrazzo is no longer "something new" but an excellent substitute for marble—proved to be excellent and lasting.

Its many uses are too numerous to mention, while designs and colour schemes may be obtained to harmonise with particular environment.

It is ideal for kitchen tables and kitchen or pantry panelling. For either interior or exterior use it is unique.

Ask Warren's to submit suggestions and estimates for any work where a pleasing and lasting effect is desired.

In connection with urgent legislation.—United Press.

THE OTHER SIDE

New York, July 26. A New York Trust Company bulletin to-day charges that the United States silver policy has harmed world trade and increased the possibilities of inflation. Possibly, says this authority, the Administration is paving the way for departure from the gold standard.

An artificial price structure had been created and it might collapse, the bulletin says.

The Administration may prove to have been ill-advised entirely, as it was in its earlier view that its silver policy would benefit China.—United Press.

WOMAN CHARGED

ALLEGED THEFT OF CLOTHING THROUGH A RUSE

Allegations that the witnesses were taught by a Chinese detective what to say in Court, were made by Lam Sap, aged 40, widow, when she was brought before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon on a charge of larceny of a quantity of clothing belonging to Mak Pun-lam, aged 20, single woman, residing at 5, Fat Hing Street.

Detective Sergeant Baldwin appeared for the Police, and stated that on the evening of July 22 defendant became acquainted with an old woman cigarette hawk named Chan Yi. She told Chan Yi that she was looking for someone to fill a vacancy in the house of her employer. Chan Yi then took defendant to a woman named Lo So, who was well-known as an employment agent. About 7 p.m. Lo So brought defendant to complainant's house where they were introduced.

Defendant told complainant that there was a job across the harbour, and asked her if she would like to fill it. Complainant agreed, and after packing several pieces of clothing left the house with defendant. Lo So was left in the house talking with complainant's aunt.

As they were proceeding along Hollywood Road defendant inquired as to whether complainant had brought with her a toothbrush and a towel. Complainant replied that she had forgotten. To do so in her hurry, and was told to return to the house for the articles.

Complainant was reluctant to leave her property with defendant, but was eventually persuaded to do so. She went home, leaving defendant with her things in the street. When she returned to the spot, defendant and the property had disappeared. A report was made to the Police.

Next day about 8 p.m. a Chinese detective saw a woman carrying a cardboard box, and as her description tallied with that in the police report, he immediately went with Lo So to Wanchai where defendant was found and identified. The clothing was valued at about $10 and has not been recovered.

Evidence was taken, and defendant in her defence brandished a pack of lies the evidence of the witnesses, and said they were told what to say by the detective, who had a grudge against her and had falsely arrested and accused her.

She declared that she did not know the witnesses, and that they could not identify her in the presence of Sergeant Baldwin.

This was refuted by the Sergeant, after which his Worship decided to adjourn the case until this morning to enable defendant to call witnesses she deposed she had.

HUPEH'S FLOODS

WORSE THAN 1931
VISITATION

DROUGHT AND FLOOD

Nanking, July 27.

Side by side with enormous areas which are completely inundated by the flood waters of northern rivers, there are districts in Hupeh suffering from prolonged drought.

The present floods in Hupeh are more serious than the catastrophe of 1931, declared Mr. Kao Yi-han, member of the Control Yuan, on his return from a trip into the Yangtze Valley.

He stated that 45 of the province's 70 districts were completely inundated, while a few of the districts which escaped the flood are at present suffering from drought.

It was officially announced earlier that 7,000,000 refugees were clamouring for help in Hupeh and that the loss of life in the floods ran into thousands. Famine and pestilence are inevitable. The authorities are bending every effort to relieve the situation.—Reuter.

FEAR OF AFRICA CLASH TEMPORARILY REMOVED

COUNCIL CALLED

London, July 26.

It is announced from Geneva that the President of the League Council, M. Maxim Litvinoff, has convened a special meeting of the Council in connection with the Italo-Abyssinian dispute.

The notice proposes that a meeting be held on Wednesday, Thursday of next week. It is understood in London that the British Government favours a meeting on Wednesday.

The Council will be apprised of developments since its meeting in May, including reports on the adjournment, without agreement, of the Conciliation Commission set up under the Italo-Abyssinian treaty of 1928, time limits for the proceedings of which were provided in the Council's resolution, and notes received in the last few days by the League Secretariat from the Ethiopian and Italian Governments. The Minister for League of Nations Affairs, Mr. Anthony Eden, is expected to attend the council as the British representative.—British Wireless.

BRITAIN HAS FIVE YEAR PLAN

"long tariff club" among the nations.

PEACE IDEALS

In agriculture, encouragement should be given to forms of production for which the country is specially suited, particularly milk, eggs, fruits, and vegetables.

Educational proposals include the raising of the school age. As regards the organisation of peace, the programme favours acceptance of international supervision of armaments, co-operation in restraining violation of the disarmament convention, and internationalisation of civil aviation.

The publication of the programme has no political significance, the object of the signatories being educational and its near coincidence with Mr. Lloyd George's new deal proposals is understood to be accidental, though many details are common to both plans.

Commenting on the programme in a leading article the Times says it is "symptomatic of the movement of thought in two directions—away from narrow party grooves and towards a sense of nationhood, which recognises social welfare as an increasing obligation of the State" and advises politicians to attend to the attitude of mind more than to the actual proposals.—British Wireless.

KWEICHOW CURRENCY

DEPRECIATION CAUSES
HEAVY LOCAL LOSS

Canton, July 26.

The financial state of the Kweichow government is in some confusion owing to the heavy depreciation of the provincial banknotes issued by the former government under General Wang Chia-ih. For years Kweichow has faced internal war and Communist bandit disturbances, which drained the resources of the government.

When General Wang Chia-ih was dismissed by General Chiang Kai-shek some weeks ago the Kweichow government banknotes depreciated to 25 cents per dollar. Holders of the $1,000,000 worth of provincial banknotes therefore suffered a tremendous loss.

When General Chiang Kai-shek entered Kweichow recently and took over the provincial government, he ordered merchants to accept banknotes, including those of other provinces, brought into Kweichow by the Nanking soldiers, at par value, as a means of restoring the value of the Kweichow notes.

It is estimated that Nanking troops circulated in Kweichow $3,000,000 worth of banknotes issued by provincial banks in China, other than those from Kweichow. Faced with financial chaos the Kweichow Chamber of Commerce and other commercial bodies have now protested to General Chiang Kai-shek against the entry of depreciated notes from other provinces.

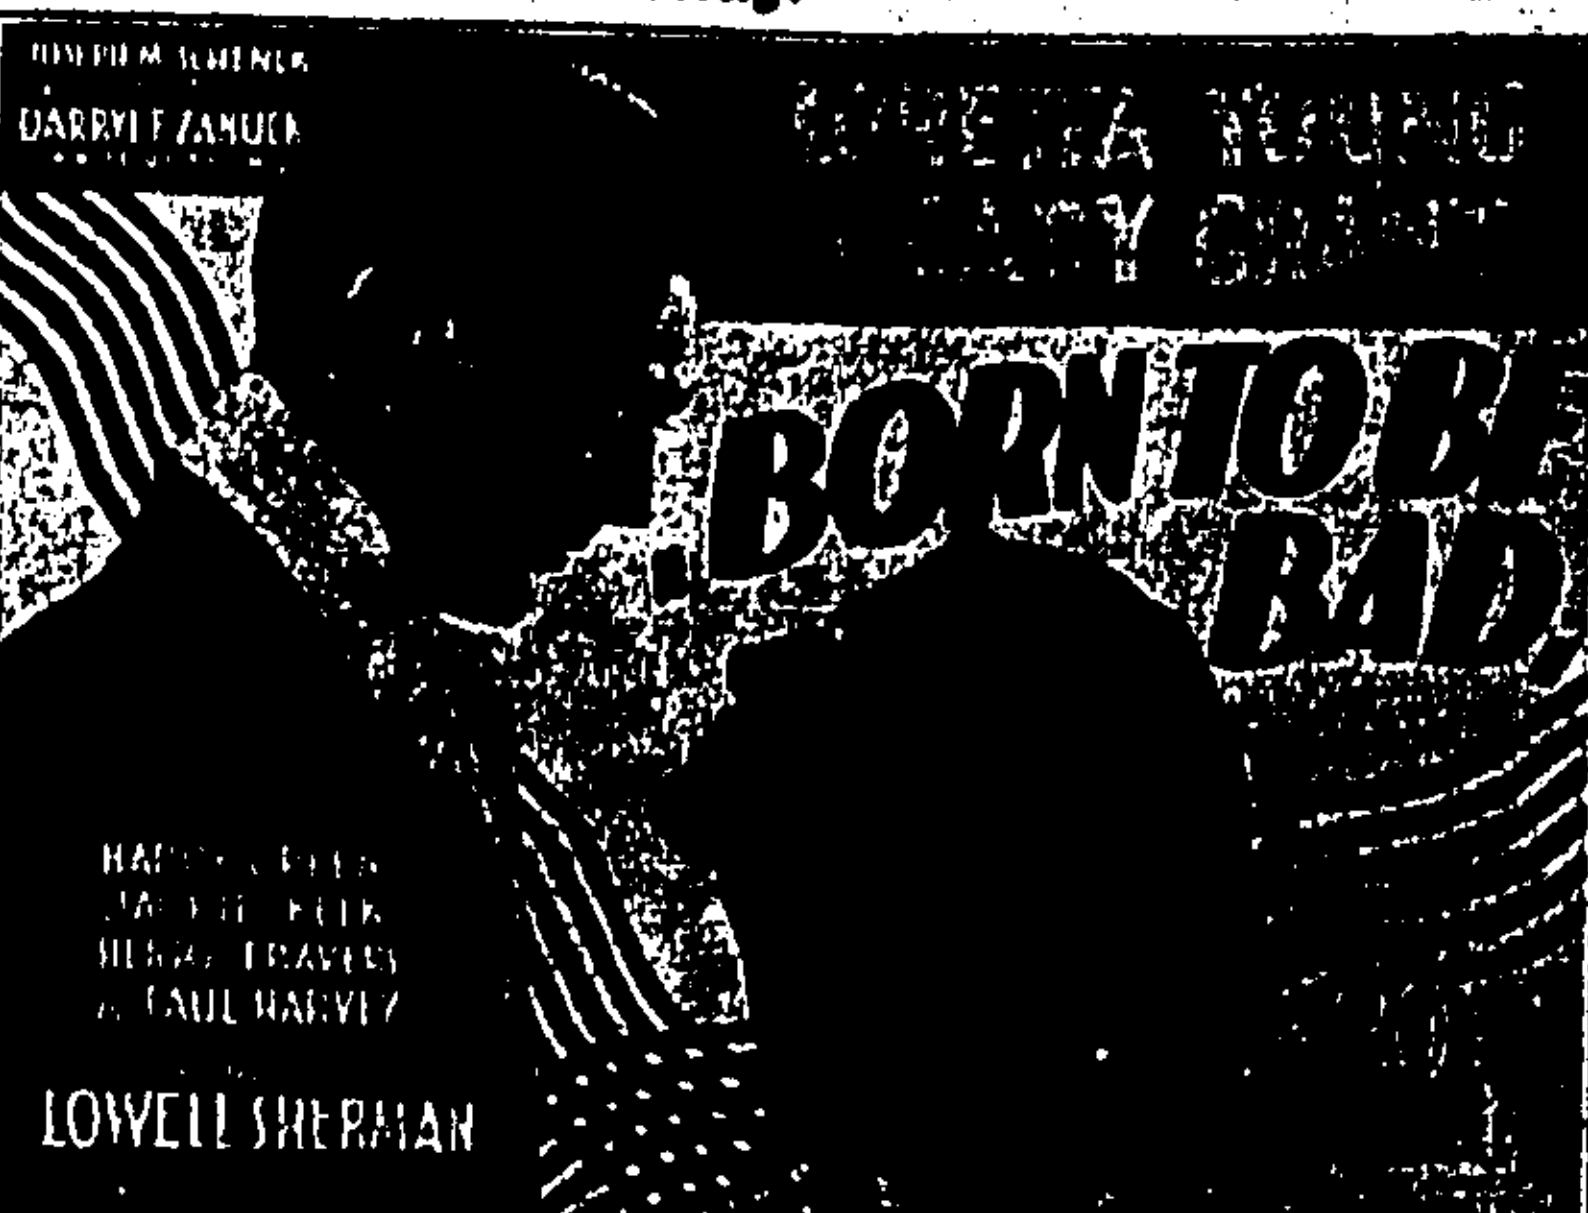

The petitioners say that unless the Government gives adequate silver backing for all banknotes circulated the latter's depreciation will be impossible.—Wah Kiu Yat.

Bitten by a dog belonging to Mr. F. C. Felham, of No. 198 The Peak at 2 p.m. yesterday, a Chinese male, Fu Yee, of No. 28 Des Voeux Road Central, was treated at the Government Civil Hospital yesterday.
